

Bert Price Charges:

'Social Workers Complete Strangers to Hard Work'

Social workers are complete strangers to hard labor, Bert Price (SC, Vancouver-Burrard) charged in the legislature last night, and immediately had members on both sides of the House taking issue with the statement.

He made the remark while discussing the Oakalla prison system and advocating institution of a work system there to keep the men busy.

"Of course," he added, "you would have to send an enterpriser in to set it up. Social workers wouldn't do, because a social worker is a complete stranger to hard labor. That's why they are social workers." Welfare Minister Wesley Black sprang to the defence of his department, assuring Mr. Price that he was "completely in error."

"It may be that some social workers will apply themselves," Mr. Price conceded,

"but they aren't the kind of people who could make a living working for me." (Mr. Price has two shoe repair shops in Vancouver.)

"They may be wonderful people to go around helping others," he concluded, "but when it comes to production they just haven't got it."

This drew immediate censure from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who said that "the civil servants of the province have been doing damage in the House tonight."

"I'm not surprised at the statement, in fact, I anticipated it," Gordon Dowling (CCF, Burnaby) said. He quoted statements in the civil servants' report calling the work of the social workers "beyond praise."

"We should not unjustly run down employees of the government," he concluded.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, obviously out to put an end to the matter, answered that "I'm sure no such thing was meant by the member." Arthur Turner (OCF, Vancouver East) was next to have his shot at Mr. Price.

"Prisoners," he pointed out, "are free enterprisers that got caught."

Mr. Price would neither apologize nor comment further.

'Long-Winded'

Senator Russell B. Long, son of famed filibuster Huey P. Long, Wednesday night set a record for the Senate's day-and-night civil rights debate. When he finished at 12:38 a.m. (EST), Long had spoken almost 9½ hours against what he called "this bill to crucify the South." (See Page 7.)

Ice, Snow Paralyze Vast Area

CHICAGO (AP)—Crippling ice and mountainous snows stunned a vast expanse of the United States Wednesday, cutting off small towns, closing schools and businesses, halting transportation and causing millions of dollars damage to woodlands.

The violent weather stretched more than 1,000 miles from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast states, with the south-land, border states and lower Midwest catching the brunt of the storms.

Tear Gas Makes Ike Weep

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (CP)—The windup of President Eisenhower's South American tour was marred yesterday by clashes between anti-United States student demonstrators and police who fought them with tear gas, fire hoses and some gunfire.

Chessman Death Set For May 2

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Convicted author Casey Chessman's ninth execution date—May 2—had been broken up officially was set Wednesday—over the whole of the emotional objections of his lawyers.

"They argued that the court could not set a new date as a 60-day reprieve has not expired."

Superior Judge Clement D. Nye held that sentencing was legal, as long as the new execution date is after the end of the 60-day period.

For Secret Base Talks

Germany Handed Canadian Rebuke

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has rebuked West Germany for its European NATO partner's secret negotiations to obtain supply depots in Spain.

Croll Charges:

'Germany Up To Old Tricks'

OTTAWA (CP)—A Jewish senator declared Wednesday that Germany is "up to its old tricks" and cannot be trusted.

It was "very obvious that here was West Germany going into Spain and here was Krupp invited to Spain for the purpose of setting up an arms factory, and here was a scheme that was being planned behind the backs of the NATO allies," said Senator David Croll (L, Ontario).

"You cannot trust Germany with a slingshot, a pop-gun or a water pistol," he said. "Somehow they will make a war weapon out of it."

"We thought we had disinfected and deodorized her," said Senator Croll, "but we find that as her strength grows, so does her arrogance."

He was discussing the furor that arose in Western capitals last week over news that West Germany had approached Spain seeking to obtain military supply depots on Spanish territory.

Senator Croll strongly criticized External Affairs Minister Green for continuing to accept German and Spanish denials of the reports even after they had been largely confirmed by the Bonn government.

He said it was a "come-down" for Canada that the move should have been disclosed here through newspaper reports rather than through NATO diplomatic channels.

Senator Croll said it was obvious that Germany's real purpose was "to secure facilities to test strategic weapons in secret."

He expressed fear that a scared Germany "may well plunge Europe into disaster."

In another year, according to present schedule, West Germany would have more troops in NATO than all the other members combined.

HAS MISSILES

It also had 1,000 supersonic bombers, and two different kinds of missiles capable of hitting Russia.

The United States had announced a policy of supplying nuclear warheads to reliable allies. "In the view of the Pentagon," Senator Croll added, "Germany is reliable."

"Germany is not to be trusted, and still to be feared," he said.

NO INKLING

Franz Josef Strauss, West German defence minister, was here last September but apparently gave the Canadian government no inkling of his plan for supply depots in Spain.

AMBASSADORS

So far, only the NATO ambassadors have dealt with the issue on instructions from their governments.

The bilateral German-Spanish negotiations were particularly galling to the Canadian government because when Mr. Green returned from the Paris NATO meeting just before Christmas he reported that consultation among alliance members was improving.

LABOR MP SAYS:

They're Building Missiles in Spain

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor MP Robert Edwards said Wednesday he hoped "to produce evidence at the opportune moment" that a West German company is building missiles in Spain.

Edwards was commenting on a statement made in Bonn Wednesday by a spokesman of Wasag Chemie, which he said was the postwar successor to the I. G. Farben cartel. The Wasag spokesman said his company made explosives in Spain but no missiles.

THREE SOURCES

Edwards countered: "My information has led me to believe that Wasag is producing rockets for the West German and Spanish armies. This information has been passed on to me from three reliable sources and I hope to produce evidence at the opportune moment, preferably in Parliament."

STILL EXISTS

Edwards said I. G. Farben had been broken up officially after the war, but the whole of the emotional objections of his cartel network still existed, particularly that part of it concerned with Spain.

"I intend to expose the industrial Spanish-German axis which I believe is more dangerous than the political axis which followed it. My information is still coming in and it shows that some industrialists have been operating behind the backs of the German people."

The Wasag spokesman said in Bonn that besides its work for the Spanish government, the company had done business with private Spanish firms since 1952—but he refused to give details.

Gunderson Railways Compete

VANCOUVER (CP)—Einar Gunderson said Wednesday two railways with which he is associated will be in competition.

The former Social Credit finance minister is executive vice-president of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway and a director of the railway planned by the Wenner-Gren interests between Prince George and the Yukon.

He told newsmen: "There's going to be competition but there will be plenty of room for all. There is going to be a tremendous development up there in the next few years."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

OF course I waited until the last day to buy my car licence. And I found that I had lost my licence application, and I had to get a new one. I knew in advance that it would happen. Like a figure in a Greek play, I went through the motions of putting the licence application in a safe place, and resolving to buy the licence in plenty of time—while knowing that it was all wasted effort.

So it was with a sense of inevitability that I found myself in the lineup at Wicket Number One, upstairs at the Motor Vehicle Bureau. The licence form had disappeared, and somehow the last day had arrived.

I had plenty of company. The other people in the lineup were saying exactly the things I had been saying to myself: Why do they send out the forms so early? I put the things away carefully, so carefully that I couldn't find them; one day I'll learn not to wait until the last day, or maybe I never will, etc. . . .

In the next queue I heard a man saying: "Got my licence at Port Alberni, but when they found out the truck burned propane they said I'd have to come down to Victoria to get the plates. Propane or diesel, you have to come to Victoria."

But I didn't hear many real grumbles. There was a feeling of excitement and good humor about, and it seemed to be shared by the staff.

Brisk and shapely women of all ages twinkled back and forth in search of papers. The Motor Vehicle Bureau, as always, seemed more like a big department store than a government office.

In fact, it was more efficient than some stores that I had seen.

Every lineup has its problem customers—people who don't fit the general pattern, so that the girl behind the counter has to go rummaging around in search of special information.

It happens in banks, liquor stores, cashier's desks—and whenever it does, the people behind the problem customer are just out of luck.

The Motor Vehicle Bureau, however, is more helpful. Instead of stationing just one girl behind the wicket, it assigns relays of them to each place.

So when one girl is away bustling around in search of something, her customer stands aside, the next one steps into place, and another clerk moves up to the wicket.

It's simple—but I have never seen it done anywhere else.

Most of us in the upstairs lineup were there because of our own foolishness. In view of this, one might have expected the clerks to be brusque and reproachful.

Quite the opposite, however. The girls behind the counter were good-natured, and did not show even a sign of scorn. They seemed to think it was an ordinary thing for people to lose their papers.

Clutching the papers, I went to line up for licence plates. The floor was packed with people lined up for half a dozen wickets. The lines twisted and curled around like a nest of snakes.

Standing in line has a special effect on people. It seems to make them light-hearted and talkative.

A lady with a springer spaniel stood in front of me.

"Couldn't leave him in the car," she said. "He'd made too much noise."

I patted the dog. "He's a baby, although he's getting along in age," the dog's owner said. "His mother just died."

"She must have been an old dog," I said.

"Thirteen."

"Nice dogs, springers," I said. "Used to have one . . ."

So we talked about dogs, cars and boats. Meanwhile a variety of people were squeezing past—businessmen, uniformed deliverymen, housewives in slacks—saying "excuse me," and "is this the end of the line?" and "what are you doing here?"

There is something to be said for public lineups. They throw together people who have never met before, and probably will not meet again. Lineups generate a feeling of "we're-all-in-this-together" which may be good for the spirit, in reasonable amounts.

Lining up is a mild ordeal, and it produces in a weak form the comradeship of people who share difficulties. Many people on this soft, lucky continent miss that feeling.

When they find themselves in a lineup, it goes to their heads like wine, and they chatter and laugh as though they had suddenly become 10 years younger.

While I was thinking about these matters, the lady's dog began to bark and whimper. "He's getting impatient," she said with a smile. The dog responded to an ear-rub, and sat quietly. Then the lady and dog were on their way with the plates.

I moved up to the wicket and got my licence—the number that would be part of my everyday life for a whole year—allotted to me, like a great many other things, by pure chance.

At the Buildings

Bonner Favors Study of Justice Across Canada

Attorney-General Bonner came out in favor in the legislature yesterday of a long-range study of criminal justice in Canada.

He described criminal justice as "automatically and unthinkingly provided for in the Criminal Code."

"We can talk as we like about treatment in prison, but basically our treatment process is groping," he said.

WIDE OPEN

"We need a great deal more psychological research before we can say our treatment in prison is meeting with success . . . It is a field wide open for research," he said.

Mr. Bonner said there are as many people in B.C. on probation as there are in jail.

Too much provision for automatic jail sentences for certain crimes was another complaint by the minister.

BIG INCREASE

He also said magistrates are placing increasing dependence on probation and that this year there will be a 30 per cent increase in the probation staff.

Cyril Sheldorf (S.C. Omineca) appealed to Mr. Bonner for a three-man board of well-known citizens, and not boards appointed by police officials, to investigate charges of police brutality.

SPECIFIC CASE

He referred to a specific case of beating at Burns Lake, but left his observations open to the whole province.

Mr. Sheldorf said results of such investigations should be made public because it was important to clear the names of policemen involved.

MORE SEVERE

Mr. Bonner said senior officials of the RCMP as well as officials of his own department "view most seriously cases of alleged brutality," and noted the discipline code of the RCMP is more severe than the public courts.

Very often a policeman is severely beaten in the course of his duty, the attorney-general pointed out. "A policeman's lot is not a happy one, especially in B.C.," he added.

Mr. Bonner disclosed the government is seeking a deep-

Quake Toll Nearing 6,000; Many Alive Under Rubble

AGADIR (UPI)—Moroccan authorities Wednesday raised the death toll estimate to between 5,000 and 6,000 in this earthquake-levelled resort city.

AGADIR—Military personnel working with medical teams from a dozen countries had dug 800 bodies and 1,200 injured out of the ruins by late at night.

MESSAGE TO KING

Morocco's national police chief said in a message to King Mohammed V that the final death toll probably would be between 5,000 and 6,000.

Another official said: "It is to be assumed that thousands of people are lying under the wreckage of their houses today. Most of them are dead. But there are probably many still alive."

MANY TO DIE?

Doctors feared that most of the living who are not recovered by today would die, either from injuries or exposure.

All over the city, the roar of bulldozers and trucks mingled with shouts of rescuers. Much of the work had to be done by hand for fear of crushing the living.

CITY OF DEAD

Aside from the rescuers and trapped victims, it was a city of the dead. Survivors had moved to tent villages on the surrounding plains. The injured were being ferried by plane to hospitals as far away as Casablanca, 240 miles north.

Giving new urgency to the rescue operation was the fear of pestilence.

HUGE RATS

Huge rats drawn by scattered food bounded in and out of openings in the rubble like alley cats. The city was without fresh water and sewers ran open.

Under orders from the Moroccan government for total evacuation, the last remnants of the population of 40,000 Moslem residents and tourists trekked out of the city that died in 10 seconds of earthquake Monday night.

HORSE AND CAR

They went by foot, car, horse, donkey and camel.

Personal tragedies unfolded before the rescue workers again and again.

Little Louise and Pierre Bansillon—ages 6 and 9—were found wandering hand-in-hand through the streets looking for their mother and father.

but they did not know what had happened to the rest of the family.

Swedish author Arthur Lindkvist said he had been through two earthquakes in South America "but for violence and the rapidity of its destruction, this earthquake beat them all."

King Mohammed V has vowed that the city will rise again.

He plans to preside at dedication of "the new Agadir" in 1961 on the anniversary of Moroccan independence March 2.

Junk Pounds, Pence Experts to Ask U.K.

Decimal System Favored

LONDON (Reuters)—A distinguished band of citizens will try again next month to pull a reluctant Britain into the world of the decimal system.

Reliable sources said Wednesday a special report from leading scientists and industrialists will recommend junking pounds, shillings and pence.

HUGE COST

After 21 months of investigation the group estimates the switch to decimal-system coinage will cost £200,000,000 ($534,000,000).

But the investigators, sponsored by the British Association for the Advancement of Science, decided the cost would be outweighed by the advantage in decreased bafflement here and abroad.

OLD HANGOVER

Present sterling coinage is a medieval hangover of 12 pennies to the shilling, 20 shillings (or 240 pennies) to the pound.

There are also guineas worth 21s (which don't exist any more); half crowns worth 2s 6d (there are no crowns any more) and a tidbit of copper called a farthing and worth a quarter of a cent.

TWO YEARS

The report is understood to estimate change to decimal coinage could be started after two years.

The report is expected to conclude that the long-term benefits will be easier calculation and school teaching.

NO "CENTS"

One method of decimal coinage recommended is believed based on making the 10-shilling note (two now equal £1—$2.67) worth 100 units. But it is unlikely the term "cents" and "dollars" will be used.

Parliament was urged to adopt decimal coinage as early as 1974.

Travelling Magistrates Urged by B.C. Jurist

Travelling teams of trained magistrates touring remote areas of the country would help reduce discrepancies in sentences for similar crimes, Mr. Justice G. Rutman told the John Howard Society here this week.

He said he has confidence in the way justice is administered in large cities by experienced men. But he is concerned at times by the variety of sentences meted out in remote courts, a situation made more serious when the defence

Boer War 'Boys' Talk It Over

Old campaigns were relived and old rivalries revived when Boer War veterans Henry Rose, 90, left, and Arthur Thielton, 89, met in Vancouver on anniversary of Battle of Paardeberg.

Rose was with 73rd Regiment, Paget's Horse; Thielton with 27th Regiment, Devonshire Yeomanry.—(AP Photofax.)

Afghans Give Nikita Cheering Welcome

KABUL, Afghanistan (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev Wednesday won a tumultuous welcome from the people of this tiny mountain kingdom, which is struggling out of backwardness with large helpings of Russian aid.

The Soviet premier told them Afghan-Russian "friendship provided a noble instance" of peaceful co-existence.

LITTLE FORCE

Six Russian-built MIG-17 fighter planes from Afghanistan's little air force escorted his big jet into the military airfield outside Kabul—also built by Russia—as he arrived from Calcutta.

Some 700 Russian technicians working on Soviet-aided projects were among the large crowds who cheered Khrushchev as he began a three-day visit, the last stop on his Asian tour.

OFFICIAL WELCOME

King Mohammed Zahir, Premier Sardar Mohammed Daud and members of the cabinet officially welcomed Khrushchev at the mountain-ringed airport.

The king said he was convinced the visit would strengthen Afghan-Soviet relations.

PURDAH STILL

Thousands of Afghans lined the 20-mile route from the airport to this capital city of new buildings and rickety slums, modern Russian cars and open sewer drains, new schools and women still observing purdah. The road was the one built

They'd Do It Again

Heroic Policemen Live Through Kiss of Death

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two policemen named Reilly and Riley, who gave mouth-to-mouth respiration to dying meningitis victims, learned yesterday they have escaped the kiss of death.

Both vowed that their long ordeals waiting out the incubation period of the disease would not slow them up if they ever again found a human being gasping for breath and apparently dying.

"I have no fears about using the same system again," said Patrolman James Reilly, 36, of Pittsburgh.

"It's all part of the job," said Patrolman Thomas Reilly, 33, of New York. "If necessary, I'll do it again."

Riley exposed himself to the highly infectious disease trying to save the life of a three-year-old boy. His New York counterpart risked death trying to breathe life into a 33-year-old woman.

Both immediately were given strong doses of antibiotics. Then they started waiting for symptoms that take four to eight days to develop. But nothing happened.

Execution Debate Bitter

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bitter partisan exchange in the state assembly over the Caryl Chessman case yesterday clouded Democratic Governor Edmund Brown's appeal to the lawmakers to abolish the death penalty in California.

Brown released a 1,500-word proclamation urging the legislature to do away with capital punishment because "it has been a gross failure"—without mentioning Chessman.

But Joseph Shell, Republican floor leader, circulated among the 78 members an extract of one of Chessman's numerous court appeals which described in detail Chessman's brutal sex attacks on two women.

Lester McMillan, a Democrat who three times has sponsored bills to abolish the death penalty, attacked Shell in a speech in which he accused him of "muckraking."

Protection for Ratepayers

THERE are always those who would have the rules changed whenever decisions go against them. And they are vocal in public affairs as well as in the realm of sports and competitive games.

Thus when a school building by-law was defeated some months ago certain authorities, angered at the way the ratepayers had voted, volunteered advice to the government that the law should be changed. Local ratepayers, they said, shouldn't be allowed any voice in how or where their money was spent for school buildings. Decisions should be made for them by the experts and the property owners should be required to pay up.

The false reasoning behind this was that since governments are not required to take a vote of the electorate every time they propose to spend money on capital works, school boards and local councils should not be either. What this argument overlooks is the fact that a government can spend only those sums of money which the legislative or parliamentary assembly, acting for the people, by majority vote authorizes it to spend.

Last Saturday the $810,000 building bylaw of the Saanich school district was defeated because it failed to win an affirmative vote of 60 per cent of those who visited the polls, although it obtained a better than 50 per cent majority. Now Mr. George Gregory, MLA, has intimated that he will propose in the legislature that in future only a bare majority be required for the passage of school bylaws.

He would be much better advised to leave this matter alone. The three-fifths majority written into the statutes with respect to school and municipal money bylaws was put there to protect property owners. Where a three-fifths affirmative vote results there can be little doubt that the item which is the subject of the poll has the support of a majority of those who will be required to pay for it. There cannot be the same assurance where one vote over 50 per cent would suffice—certainly not in electorates where most of the voters do not bother to record their wishes at all.

Moreover, in the case of the Saanich bylaw it was not the requirement of the law which frustrated the wishes of those who supported the building program but the laziness and apathy of others of the same persuasion. When an issue is decided by only one-third of those qualified to vote on it, disgruntled persons who absented themselves from the polls cannot afterwards complain about the wording of the law.

A Misleading Statement

IT is surprising to have the head of a large insurance company imply that the big spenders are persons who have retired. This runs counter to ordinary concept, and in fact to logic. Few people are richer on pensions than when they are at work.

The president of Imperial Life is quoted as saying in Toronto this week that persons qualifying for the old-age security pension "may have a spending power above the average of the population as a whole." It is important to note the use of the word "may." This suggests that he is guessing or giving voice to an assumption.

Certainly it would be hard to believe that in Victoria the affluent citizens were the pensioners. Too much is known of them for this to be swallowed. In the main most people are forced to draw in their horns once a regular wage gives way to gratuities or pension payments. None of these match in amount the earnings of active work.

It is a fact that the universal old-age allowance goes to all and sundry, rich and poor alike, but the number of individuals enriched by it to a spending spree must be few indeed. By and large this allowance enables recipients to avoid reducing their living standards too sharply, while for some it becomes the chief means of their support. Nowhere however can receipt of a pension compensate fully for the income derived before pension age.

It is therefore highly misleading to imply that pensioners are better off than those who work, and the danger of such remarks by prominent businessmen is that these may becloud the claims of such pensioners as find even the universal allowance too small to permit them to live half decently.

'Made in B.C.'

PRICE and quality being equal—and in many lines of home production will be found the case—many British Columbia shoppers will take a "made in B.C." article in preference to any other. To such an extent is this recognized that most manufacturers, canners and producers take great care with the origination of a "B.C." brand and display justified pride in exhibiting it. Both for export and internal sales the same consideration holds true: it is that basically B.C. products can be relied upon to be of standard grade as advertised.

Through the years this has been for the most part a voluntary selling effort; although federal law in some categories requires the place of origin to be shown. The suggestion supported by opposition benches in the Legislature this week that the "made in B.C." tag be affixed to farm produce and other things grown or made within the province, while an extension of the same theme, would change a voluntary effort into a statutory obligation. If by enactment B.C. products were required to be marked with the place of origin, how about the same and other commodities not produced in the province? There is as much to be said for disclosure of the originating point in either case.

Short of enactment of mandatory legislation, the provincial government could do much to encourage the voluntary use of the "made in B.C." label as sound and worthwhile practice, wherever applicable. B.C. products through their standard are self-advertising in the most effective way—by proof of their quality on test.

Interpreting the News

India's Border Dispute

By JOSEPH MACSWEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRIME MINISTER NEHRU gives the impression he expects no sudden settlement of India's border dispute with Red China in his forthcoming talks with Chou En-lai.

The New Delhi meeting was Nehru's own idea and he has expressed happiness that the Red Chinese premier agreed to come. But the words of the urbane Indian leader, a proponent of the patient approach, were perfectly cool and correct. Recognizing the strong bargaining position of his rival.

Some observers believe Chou would never have agreed to go to New Delhi unless he intended to settle the border quarrel. But whether he will settle on a basis satisfactory to India is another matter.

India and Red China had enjoyed 40 years of friendly relations until refugees fled into India following Communist suppression of an uprising in Tibet last March.

Dormant differences over territory along the 2,500-mile frontier between the two countries flared into violence and resulted in angry statements in the following months.

India has rejected China's claims to about 51,000 square miles of territory—an area as large as New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Communist troops in Ladakh, a part of Indian-claimed areas in Kashmir, are in actual occupation of about 10,000 square miles.

Just what role, if any, the touring Soviet premier Khrushchev may be playing in the Sino-India dispute is a subject of speculation.

If there is no settlement, he can display clean hands. If there is a settlement, the benefit will be widely held that he had something to do with it. In view of his two visits with Nehru and his presumably frequent communications with Peking.

Observers see a number of bright aspects in Nehru's cause.

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

AT Squaw Valley last Sunday the U.S. hockey team took deep gulps of oxygen during the second intermission and went out like giants refreshed to sweep Czechoslovakia off the ice in the last period.

The intriguing aspect of this disclosure is that it was a Russian who fed them the oxygen, in order that the Czechs would not rank higher in the final standings than the Soviet team.

All is not lovey-dovey behind the Iron curtain, apparently.

I suppose one might say the American boys thus stole a march on their opponents, but presumably there was no rule against artificial aids and hockey at high altitudes is an exhausting affair. Since they were probably more nearly amateur than any other team in this "shamateur" Olympic business, also, the U.S. players deserved to win.

In any case I would feel a tinge of guilt did I point a finger at the oxygen. In my own undistinguished past I can remember sometimes swallowing two lumps of sugar at half-time in a soccer game. I doubt this increased my vigor one iota, still the intent was there.

However, in defence of my natural stamina of those days I must recall that one played the whole game from beginning to end, unless, naturally, one was injured and forced to depart, unwillingly, from the field. Physical fitness was part of the sport and any suggestion that one should retire to the sidelines for a rest would have been regarded as an insult.

But these were old-fashioned days and great progress has since been made in the realm of team sports. The continuous toil of 60-minute or 90-minute game is now frowned on as unnecessary. Liking his ease as much as his neighbor this writer does not condemn these developments. One must be attuned to one's times. The trend is perhaps worth noting nevertheless in view of the gathering criticism launched against the softer standards of the West, particularly on this side of the Atlantic.

An athletic hero can no longer be looked upon as the acme of physical fitness, not if he performs in a team sport at least. He doesn't have to be. There is no premium on stamina. If he starts to puff too much he can call for a substitute. Indeed the situation is that a player would scarcely be allowed to play a whole game even if he so wanted. Substitution makes for speed and, ostensibly, a more attractive spectacle. If one adds that it also dims the halo of the stars one would be, doubtless, an old hand.

But it means of course that a hockey player, for instance, even the sturdiest, plays only about one-third of the full game time—a half at most.

If this depletion of vigor is bad for the nation, like TV sitting, happily there is some compensation in sight. We enjoy an existence in which physical effort is much at a discount, and this could be disastrous if all the spartan nations we hear so much about were not bent in the same direction.

They are, however, Western standards are their goal and when our comforts become theirs they will go the way of all flesh too. As it is they are adopting our sports habits holubolus and apparently, are well-acquainted with labor-saving tactics and artificial aids like oxygen.

One of these days they will come up to our level, or down to it, and then possibly we can feel even more complacent than we do now.

Reports from Ottawa

"WHAT Lola wants, Lola gets" is the song that cabinet ministers sing to Parliament when they have big fat majorities to back up their demands.

Today's Lola is Public Works Minister Walker. He wants half a billion dollars to spend on the national housing program when and if he sees fit.

He'll get it. The opposition parties would rather Walker content himself with much less—say, the $175,000,000 that the government intends to use for direct mortgage lending in 1960.

Walker hasn't explained why he wants the much larger authorization to spend money on mortgages, money he doesn't immediately need. But it would seem that he doesn't want to have to come back to Parliament next year for more money.

The Liberals mutter darkly about the government using this device to avoid another debate on housing before the next election. What they might well be more concerned about—as rival politicians, at any rate—is the fact that the government will have some $325,000,000 left that it can disburse at a time when its political value will be greatest, without any by-your-leave from the opposition.

This year is now certain to be a poor one for the house-building industry. Government investment in NHA mortgages will be only half what it was in 1959. The banks will be largely out of the home financing business, being barred by government policy from sharing in business at the higher 6 1/2 per cent interest rate set by Walker. The trust companies are afflicted by a shortage of funds. Only the life insurance companies may do more NHA business than they did last year, and even with them, the amount of mortgage money they put out will be affected by their judgment of investment opportunities in the bond market later in the year. And finally, conventional institutional mortgages are bucking interest rates of between 8 and 9 per cent, a formidable deterrent to builder and buyer.

Walker estimates that the country needs an average of 125,000 new housing units a year to meet demand arising from family formation, population shift, and replacement of houses no longer serviceable.

Last year 145,000 were completed, with a carry-over into 1960 of 80,000 houses under construction. Only 105,000 completions are required this year to yield a two-year average of 125,000, and 80,000 is a big part of 105,000.

Ottawa's biggest builder, Robert Campeau, estimates starts this year at 68,000, compared with 141,000 last year.

If Campeau is correct, the carry-over of unfinished houses into 1961 will be very small, and winter unemployment in the building trades will be very large.

In about a week Trade Minister Churchill will announce the results of a survey of the capital investment intentions of governments and business in 1960. I'm told that the figures are up from 1959—mainly because of investment in machinery and equipment, but also to a lesser extent because of new construction on the drawing boards. In cutting back on housing to help balance the budget, the government is counting on non-residential construction to take up a big part of the slack.

If this gamble does not pay off, the government could push out another $150,000,000 or so in builder loans in the fall for job-creating winter-home construction. Whether it does that may also depend on the prime minister's election plans. If there is a big spurge of government mortgage money in September and October, the chances for an election in 1961 rather than 1962 will be considerably enhanced.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

A quite wealthy old gentleman of my acquaintance had a job when a young man peddling strawberries in season from a horse and wagon through the streets of the city. After the strawberries came the cherries: 15 cents a basket. Later, in the season, ripe Crawford peaches only two bits a basket.

He had a fine ringing voice, and he worked two springs, summers and falls for a fruit peddler, driving his horse and wagon slowly about the tree-bordered streets and shouting his tenor news of the bargains to be had off his wagon. Then he got a job as a clerk in a grocery store, and Fortune smiled him up the golden ladder, from store to bigger store, from lucky break to lucky break until at 50 he lived in a mansion in an exclusive neighborhood, commonly wore a tuxedo in the evenings, not only belonged to clubs but was on committees, in striped trousers and cutaway he called on the lieutenant-governor at New Year, and altogether was a nabob of the city he knew so well, uptown and down.

"Of course there were some streets we peddlers never went into," he told me. "No matter how loud we howled, nobody ever came to the doors. Those streets were a waste of time. One fine day I lived in one of those streets, and it used to amuse me that no peddler ever came our way. But look what happens! From morning to night now my ears are filled with the cries of peddlers. Not in the street, but in my very house. Not only are they yelling at me, they are singing their commercials at me. These modern peddlers invade the most exclusive neighborhoods."

New Threat To Peace

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE authority that resides in the great cube of glass and steel thrust up beside the East River is as intangible as the hopes in men's hearts. No missiles, no planes, no bombs, no tanks, yet again and again the authority of the United Nations has been used to keep the peace in a world torn by the fiercest dissensions. The newest threat to peace seems for the moment to defy that authority. Specifically it is the peace-making powers of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld that are under challenge, and some of his persistent critics are ready to count him out. During his years as head of the permanent organization Hammarskjöld has greatly enlarged the UN's potentialities for keeping order in a time of disorder and revolution.

Granted the new threat is a tough one—the old hostility of the United Arab Republic and Israel in a seemingly insoluble form. Repeated border incidents and reports of extensive Egyptian mobilization have resulted in a complaint by Israel to the Security Council against "warlike threats." So cautious in public, so bold and resourceful in private, Hammarskjöld in his latest press conference said the situation was "deteriorating."

While the big powers would currently like to ignore it, and this is one of the secretary-general's problems, a new Middle East war could come out of the growing tension. That is no idle threat in a year of a summit conference and an American election.

The Egyptians have refused to allow Israeli cargoes—even though they have surrendered title to them—to pass through the Suez Canal. In December the Astypalea, a small Greek ship with 400 tons of cement from Haifa, was denied passage. This violates the agreement President Nasser entered into after the Suez crisis to maintain the canal as an international waterway open to ships of every nationality.

Twice in the past year and a half Nasser has resisted Hammarskjöld's best efforts in face-to-face encounters in Cairo. If Israel had been willing to play the game of neutral ships and neutral cargoes in silence Nasser might have been willing to let the cargoes pass. But even that is doubtful.

For the Israelis, however, it is too vital a matter to rely on subterfuge. To prosper, Israel must become a Middle East Switzerland, trading in goods of high quality. With the Arab boycott and the competition in Europe the ready markets are in Africa and southeast Asia. That means continuing and uninterrupted passage through the canal for the long future.

On their side the Egyptians have been saying that when Israel lives up to the agreements of 1948-49 to repatriate the Arab refugees perhaps it will be time to say that Israeli ships may go through the canal. These are the iron rigidities against which hopes of a settlement have been repeatedly dashed.

Hammarskjöld intimated at this press conference that it might be necessary to go to the Security Council with the problem. His critics took this as a signal of defeat for his personal diplomacy. But they reckoned without the resourcefulness of this astute peacekeeper and they ignore his remarkable achievement of last summer.

At that time a war scare in Laos in southeast Asia was in the headlines. Washington backed Laotian charges of aggression by Communist China. When his customary diplomatic skills were unavailing Hammarskjöld brought the issue to the attention of the Security Council.

He did this not by formally invoking Article 99 of the Charter, giving him the power to "bring to attention" of the council a threat to peace. Informally he pointed to the need for a UN investigation of what was really happening in the remote border areas of Laos. Soviet Russia strongly protested any such move but the council, by a vote of 10 to 1, approved the sending of a UN look-see commission.

The commission found no solid evidence of aggression. The war scare in Laos and Washington died aborning. It was another instance of the peace-making potential of the UN.

Hammarskjöld is far from having played all his cards in the newest Arab-Israeli crisis. Despite the reluctance of the big powers, he can get the matter before the Security Council in one of several ways. And even though a true commission is already polling disputed areas, he could, as in Laos, invoke further restraints.

A cool, dispassionate Swede, Hammarskjöld has time and again walked into troubles on the point of exploding into violence. But it is always in the role he has set himself as a pioneer of new paths to peace.

Doctrine for Robots

(From The Hamilton Spectator)

NEVER say anything controversial," is the tenor of advice in an American manual for the world-be successful man.

The precept would be excellent in a world dedicated to the production of human robots, a world in which individuality had become a sin and the human personality, magnified in uniqueness, had resigned itself to the phony enigmata of perpetual "homogeneity" or political conformity.

When we reach the records of human achievements in all ages we find that almost all the creations and exciting discoveries in art, music, literature, science and exploration were made by individuals, not groups, and usually either in defiance of or open hostility to popular creeds and opinions.

'History Will Prove We Were Right'—Eden

The Memoirs of Sir Anthony Eden: Full Circle (British Book Service Canada Ltd., $7.50) is reviewed by John Gellner, retired RCAF wing commander and former lecturer on strategy and world affairs at the RCAF Staff College.

By JOHN GELLNER

Sir Anthony Eden's long-awaited book—it will be on the bookstore shelves Monday—is that of a worried man watching the free world paying the terrible penalty of reliving history because it has failed to learn from it.

It has been written in bitterness, but not in anger; the author has not rushed out to put his frustrated designs and rejected judgments before the court of public opinion, but has wisely waited for more than three years, during which he has been able to re-examine his actions.

Still Convinced

This gives much weight to the fact that he still stands by what he said not long before his resignation:

"I am convinced, more convinced than I have been about anything in all my public life, that we were right, my colleagues and I, in the judgments and decisions we took, and that history will prove it so."

Tense and tired, Sir Anthony Eden is pictured as he drove through London streets in 1957 to face Parliament's reaction to his government's moves in the Suez crisis.

U.S. Killed It

The Franco-British intervention in the Middle East, the "Suez crisis" as it is so commonly called came to naught because of the violent opposition of the United States. Eden makes this quite clear. It was not concern over the coherence of the Commonwealth which influenced the end of the decisions of the Eden government. After Suez, the story was widely banded about that the firm stand taken by Canada has made the fighting calm in London pause.

Less Impressed

There is not the slightest suggestion of this in the memoirs. The British government seems to have been even less impressed by the now famous, threatening Bulgarian letter of

Harbor Tie-Up Almost Ended

VANCOUVER (CP)—For the first time in more than two months Vancouver harbor should be back to normal next week.

A shipping tie-up that has lasted more than 10 weeks and at one stage saw 40 ships in harbor is virtually over, Capt. B. D. L. Johnson, port manager, said yesterday.

The jam was caused by the time-consuming process of drying out prairie wheat before it was loaded on ships.

The tie-up has cost ship owners and charter parties $500,000.

'Myopia' of Eisenhower, Dulles Real Reason for Suez Collapse

clear, is deeply convinced of the terrible threat to world order which comes from any dictatorial regime. He is a modern Cato, forever warning that tyrants must be checked before they get too big for their britches.

Franco, Castro

If this is an obsession with him, it is an understandable one—to read the parts of the "Memoirs" in which Eden deals generally with the characteristics of totalitarian regimes might serve as a salutary reminder to those who are perhaps inclined to take too detached a view of the Khrushchevs and Mao-tse Tung, the Francos and Fidel Castros.

Eisenhower and Dulles, on the other hand, who were Eden's antagonists in the Suez crisis, were undoubtedly, also suspicious of dictators, but lacking Eden's—and most Europeans'—immediate and bitter experience of the 1930s, they were taking a pragmatic view of the matter.

Eisenhower had been a comparatively junior officer in the years before the Second World War, during which Eden as a politician, and for much of the time as a cabinet minister was in continuous touch with the tragic events of the time.

Dulles was closer to the scene, physically and intellectually, but he was an onlooker not an actor.

Whole Nation

Hence the gulf between Eden's outlook on Nasser and the dangers of Nasserism and Eisenhower's and Dulles'. Unfortunately, the "myopia," as Eden calls it, which had struck the American government in late 1956 was that of the whole nation.

Vice-President Nixon often expresses the feelings of the common American. He did so at that time when he said:

"For the first time in history we have shown independence of Anglo-French policies towards Asia and Africa which seemed to us to reflect the colonial tradition. This declaration of independence has had an electrifying effect throughout the world."

Does he still glory over having harmed and abused his country's best friends, now that the United States is being as irresponsibly pushed around in Cuba as Britain was in Egypt?

If in this review we are dwelling so much on the Suez crisis, which after all takes up only part of the "Eden Memoirs," it is because the author's personality, its great strength—but also its weakness, stands out most clearly in this climax and tragic ending of a spectacular career.

For though Eden succeeds admirably in persuading the reader of the purity of his motives and the validity of his political judgments, he also leaves one with the impression that at times the execution was not as good as the plans themselves.

All in all, this is a remarkable book written by a very deep thinker and a very conscientious man. It cannot fail to make a deep impression.

Democrat Framing Rights Compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas was reported last night to be framing a compromise civil rights bill for consideration at today's "urgent" conference of Republican senators.

Senate advocates of civil rights legislation held several strategy huddles during the third day of unbroken Senate sessions on the controversial issue.

One Democrat informant said Johnson was trying to find a basis for compromise in which the protection of voting rights would be the core. But a Republican senator said Johnson was asked to have his alternative proposal "ready in time for our conference."

Republican leader Everett Dirksen said the luncheon conference of all 35 Republican senators would be devoted to "the entire civil rights question."

He added that the question of cloture — or a limit on Senate debate — would be included.

Dirksen's announcement came after the greatly outnumbered Southerners were overwhelmingly defeated on three pre-sunrise votes. But the South still held the Senate floor and showed no signs of weakening in its battle.

Heavy Haul Worth $75

A heavy haul in cash—more than $75 in rolls of pennies—was taken by a burglar who raided Len's Grocery, 1024 Finlayson, overnight Tuesday.

Proprietor Len Stander reported the break-in. It was found that the thieves broke a small hole in a rear window to release a bag and bolt bar.

Once inside, they pulled out a number of boxes before finding one containing the pennies, all rolled ready for the bank.

Children Fully Freed

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Sons of Freedom Doukhobor children, released by special order from New Denver dormitory last summer but technically retained in custody of the provincial welfare department, Wednesday were given full freedom.

The move came when Magistrate W. Evans rescinded the order committing the 75 children and dismissed an application by the provincial government for an eight-month extension of its custody of the children.

Magistrate Evans directed that all but two of the children be returned permanently to the care and control of their parents. The two exceptions were subject to special circumstances and will remain under welfare department guidance.

No parents appeared in court for the hearing, which was originally called for last month. When no parents appeared then, the magistrate ordered an adjournment to BRISTOL, Eng. (Reuters)—Eight exhausted Bristol University men claim a world record for a marathon game of darts, latest craze to hit contest-crazy Britain, with a score of 1,000,001 in 27 hours and 50 minutes.

Feb. 25, and on that date ordered another.

The children were placed in the dormitory at New Denver by welfare officials when the Freedomite parents refused to permit them to attend regular school.

Magistrate Evans later issued an order giving the parents temporary custody of their children after he obtained promises from the sect that the children would be placed in regular schools.

In answer to the Crown's plea for further extension of the order, Magistrate Evans said the parents promised to send their children to regular school, and "this, according to the evidence, they have done." "They could do no more," he said. "They have kept their promise to the court in all ways."

Quality Left In Cup Play

LONDON (Special)—With the last of the giant-killers safely bundled to the sidelines, the giants of the Football Association Cup competition get down to the business of settling the two finalists for the season's climax at Wembley in May.

What an imposing array of talent that has survived the three rounds! Six first division clubs—all of them worthy contenders—and two strong second division sides with a history of cup successes will battle in the quarter-finals on March 12. The winners clash two weeks later to decide the finalists for the prize match. The two less fancied sides

Memories of 1949 Revived

This came one week after a sensational league victory over Tottenham. Tottenham at White Hart Lane and followed another spectacular away-from-home victory over Wolverhampton. Leicester, beaten only twice in the last 14 games, is host to Wolves in the sixth round and the meeting will revive memories of the 1949 final when Wolves beat Leicester by 3-1.

Wolves, who are now 7-2 cup favorites, have come through a testing draw with flying colors. They put down the strong challenge of Newcastle after a replay, beat Charlton at home and then

Derek Pace Sets Pace

Wednesday, fancied by many to win Wembley honors, has won six of its last seven away matches but the Yorkshiremen must contend with United centre-forward Derek Pace, who has scored eight of nine cup goals and has picked up hat-tricks in the last two rounds.

Two Lancashire rivals, provide another attractive tie. Burnley, picked to play in the new international league in New York, had a fifth-round score against Bradford City but scored two goals in the last 11 minutes to equalize and

Bitter Blow to London

It was also a bitter blow to London and the south of England. Not since 1952 has a London club reached the cup final, much to the delight of the critics who feel that London teams provide far too many international players while the north is overlooked. And the defeats of Luton, gallant Watford and Brighton also wiped out the south's cup hopes.

Aston Villa, the most famous of all cup teams with a record of seven Wembley triumphs (Blackburn is next with six), carries the main second-

All Top Half Soccer Clubs

With so much uncertainty surrounding the cup competition it is interesting to note that at the time of the quarter-final draw, Wolves (2), Sheffield Wednesday (3), Burnley (4), Preston (5) and Blackburn, a strong 10th, were all in the top half of the first division.

Watford's tremendous struggle at Sheffield United was one of the highlights of the fifth round. The little fourth division club, with the big one, two scoring punch of Dennis Uphill and Cliff Bolton held a 2-1 half-time lead, and were equal to their opponents until

American Leaguers Slow in Signing Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball holdout season has begun and not a single American League club could boast that all its players were in the fold.

On the other hand, four National League teams—Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis—were 100 per cent signed.

Several full squads don't report until later in the week, but if a player isn't signed in by 12:01 on March 1 he is considered a member of the hold-out corps.

On that basis, here is a rundown of the discontented operatives:

Nanaimo Hosts Tournament

By LARRY ROSE
Four berths in the B.C. tournament, to be held later this month at Vancouver, will be at stake when the annual Vancouver Island high school basketball tournament opens Friday morning at Nanaimo.

Eight schools will compete in the double-knockout competition at Nanaimo. Defending Vancouver Island and B.C. champion Victoria High Totems have been established as tournament favorites.

Other Victoria entries are Oak Bay and Belmont. Courtenay, Alberni, Ladysmith, Lake Cowichan and Chemainus complete the list of competing schools.

Mount Newton of Victoria will participate in the B.C. high school senior girls' tournament at Vancouver next week.

Tournament will be held at UBC War Memorial gym, opening Thursday and concluding Saturday, March 12.

A total of 12 teams will compete in the double-elimination meet.

Oak Bay won the inter-high school senior soccer league championship Wednesday afternoon at Carnarvon Park with a 2-0 victory over Mount Douglas.

Undefeated in six games, Oak Bay enters playoff competition for the Colonist Cup next week.

John Yousson and John Fraser were Oak Bay scorers Wednesday while goalkeeper Brian Usher was also a stand-out.

Alan Young, goalkeeper, shone for Mount Douglas.

Esquimalt moved into first place in the inter-high school junior boys' basketball league by defeating Victoria High 33-22 Wednesday afternoon at Oak Bay.

Jack Newnam led Esquimalt to the win with 12 points while G. Detweiler scored eight for Victoria High.

'Doctors Better Accept Fact National Health Scheme Sure'

MONTREAL (UPI) — The retiring president of the College of General Practice of Canada said last night that Canada was moving exorably towards some form of national health insurance and members of the medical profession had better accept the fact.

Dr. Maurice Hobbs of Millbrook, Ont., told more than

1,000 general physicians that the Canadian public will soon demand "and get some form of prepaid medical coverage."

Dr. Hobbs, in an address to the annual dinner of the college, said this drift to a form of state welfare will come about despite anything that members of the medical profession, who may oppose the principle, may attempt to do.

He called on fellow members of the college, whatever their individual feelings about a welfare state and universal health insurance plans were, to recognize their inevitability and work constructively with governments and private groups involved in the planning of such schemes.

With this spirit of co-operation, Dr. Hobbs said, the family doctor will be able to ensure that any such plan will leave medical decisions in the hands of the medical profession, besides giving the doctor a fair remuneration without making him an employee of the state.

Today's trend away from self-employment and self-dependence towards the security offered by unions and corporate organizations has definite medical as well as socio-economic aspects, he added.

Censorship

Grimms' Tales Grim-Bonner

The trouble with censorship, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the legislature yesterday, is that it can get "ridiculous."

He addressed his remarks to two MLAs, Mrs. Lois Haggen (CCF, Grand Forks-Greenwood) and Bert Price (SC, Vancouver-Burrard), who complained of certain types of movies and movie publicity.

Mrs. Haggen asked if film censorship could be extended to movie promotion and Mr. Price complained that one night in Vancouver when he was seeking a picture for his youngster he could find only one that was not labelled "adult entertainment only."

Mrs. Haggen objected to horror-film promotions, but the attorney-general pointed out that he remembered such accepted works as Grimm's Fairy Tales as "undiluted horror filled with emotional impact."

Labor Next In House

After 35 minutes of debate, the House last night passed the $346,504 industrial development, trade and commerce estimates of Trade Minister Robert Bonner.

Today, starting at 2 p.m., the legislature will consider estimates of Lyle Wicks' labor and commercial transport departments. House leader Bonner said that, if the estimates are passed in the afternoon, there will be no night sitting.

Progress 'Positive' In Doukhobor Issue

Attorney-General Robert Bonner almost, but not quite, told the legislature last night that the Doukhobor problem in the Kootenays is solved.

There is nothing to say it is not solved, he said, but it will be a decade before anyone can say finally it is solved.

There are encouraging signs on all sides, he said, that the Doukhobors are determined to enter more wholeheartedly into the Canadian way of life.

"All in all," he summed up, "I would say progress has been positive and apparent, and I hope the condition is permanent."

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) urged that the Doukhobors be put on the voters' list.

Sommers Case 'A Dead Issue'

The Sommers case is a dead issue as far as Attorney-General Robert Bonner is concerned.

He declined to comment yesterday after Tony Gargrave (CCF, Mackenzie) asked him why the delay in charges and in bringing the case before the court.

Mr. Gargrave pointed out that this is the first time the legislature has been in session when the case has not been sub-judice.

Mr. Bonner said the case had been disposed of more than a year ago and statements had been made by him then. He declined to comment further.

Angry Lather Asked

Labor Council Protests Hospital Building Delay

The B.C. government came under heavy fire last night from Victoria Labor Council delegates for delays of several months in approval of plans for the new $2,500,000 wing at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Delegates voted to fire off an angry letter to Premier Bennett demanding an explanation of the delays, described by council vice-president E. T. Staley as "a disgraceful breach of faith with the working people of this area."

IWA delegate Jack McKenzie charged the government with "sitting on the plans" until a provincial election is called. He told delegates: "Then you just watch the action."

Mr. MacKenzie said $450,000 towards the cost of the new wing was raised locally by public subscription. He said campaign officials promised the project would provide jobs for 150-200 men for two years with an annual payroll of $1,000,000.

"We have 5,351 people out of work in Greater Victoria right now," he said, "yet not a sod has been turned."

Mr. Staley said: "We need the hospital and we need the jobs."

In other council business, delegates:

• Endorsed a request for support by Victoria Postal Employees' Association in its bid for higher wages.

• Agreed to work with Victoria Senior Citizens Housing Society in an effort to obtain tax-free status for homes for the aged.

• Heard a report that a district council to promote use of products bearing the union label was desirable but not within present means of V.L.C. cheques.

Addiction Worst Problem

Narcotics addiction is the closest thing to a baffling problem that we face, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the legislature last night.

"Money itself is not the answer," he said.

He said the United States has had a long and dismal history in dealing with addiction and has met with only 3 per cent success in rehabilitation.

New Engine Runs On Peanut Butter

DERBY, England (AP) — Rolls-Royce Wednesday reported the development of an engine that eventually will run on "anything from peanut butter to creosote."

The engine, capable of running on any type of fuel, was designed for military use.

"The idea is to provide an engine that will run on any type of fuel which may be found in a battle area," a spokesman said.

"The engine is so economical there are possibilities in developing it for cars."

NBC Welcome

Paar Back Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jack Paar returned to town last night and NBC put him back in his $100,000 job.

He was greeted at the airport on his arrival from a three-week self-imposed exile from his late night show by NBC officials and fans wearing "Welcome Back Jack" buttons.

"I'm glad to be back, but I'm not dancing in the street," Paar said of his reception. He had huffed off his show Feb. 11 because the network cut out a joke it thought was objectionable.

"I'm sorry about the whole thing," Paar said as the final word. "He will take over his show Monday night."

Paar's vacation sulk had taken him to Florida, San Francisco, Honolulu and Hong Kong, but his return to the "Jack Paar Show" had been decided early in his travels.

"I gotta go back," he said last night.

Paar, who was accompanied by his wife, denied there was anything irregular in a real estate purchase he had made in Florida and then had shown a film of the area on his show.

In answer to reports he would be called to testify in a Congressional payola hearing in connection with the film, Paar said:

"If Congress asks me to testify, I'll be there, but I resent any allegations made before an investigation gets under way."

Fire Guts Cabins On Survey Ship

Fire gutted two cabins aboard the federal government survey ship Marabell just before midnight last night, causing an estimated $2,000 damage.

Firemen from Esquimalt and HMC Dockyard had to use smoke masks to get at the blaze through dense clouds of smoke.

The ship was tied up at Yarrow where electrical work was being done in the engine room.

Alarm was turned in by a member of the crew of HMCS Fortune, which is in the yard for refit.

Valentines Beat Hearts

OTTAWA (CP) — When it comes to affairs of the heart, Canadians, it would seem, have a rather peculiar system of priorities. Last year they spent six times as much on Valentines as they did on heart research.

B.C. Needs Automation 'To Maintain Economy'

"Automation is essential if British Columbia is to maintain its position and expanding economy," the Canadian Manufacturers' Association told the legislative committee on labor yesterday.

The CMA contended that automation is no new problem, that it has been going on for two centuries and has accelerated due to development of machinery during the Second World War.

It is important to realize, the CMA maintained, that "people will be displaced rather than replaced" by machinery.

Bert McDonnell, chairman of the CMA, said that he could not see any reason to say that automation is going to provide unemployment, and quoted a report from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"By the time we manufacture half of the automatic equipment needed to make the automatic factories we will be so short of workers we will have to put all the men, women and children to work to build the machines, let alone run them," he said.

Court Charges

Banks Cash $26,000 In Forgeries

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bank accountant testified yesterday that $26,000 worth of counterfeit $50 Bank of Nova Scotia travellers' cheques has been cashed in banks across Canada.

George Alexander, accountant with the Bank of Nova Scotia, said the phony cheques appeared to be similar to those found in a trunk seized by city police.

He was testifying at the preliminary hearing into charges against Llewellyn Theodore Welch, 48, of Vancouver.

Welch is charged with possession of metal plates intended for use in making counterfeit money, possession of incomplete counterfeit United States $20 bills and committing perjury by making Bank of Nova Scotia travellers' cheques.

Ferry's Final Trials 'Up to Expectations'

Adjustment Will Stop Vibrations

A beaming Highways Minister Gagliardi said he was "delighted" with the new Mv Sidney as the $3,000,000 ferry sailed triumphantly home yesterday after a day of exacting final trials in Juan de Fuca Strait.

Her arduous shakedown cruise climaxed four weeks of trials and was performed under the critical eyes of the highways minister, the government's financial adviser J. V. Fisher, all the top officials and technicians of the builders — Victoria Machinery Depot; representatives of the federal government, Lloyds of London, the Royal Canadian Navy and 80 invited guests.

JUNE START

The Sidney will be handed over to the B.C. government Friday and is expected to start the Sidney-Tsawwassen ferry service early in June.

"A most impressive performance," Mr. Gagliardi said. "Of course, there are some minor adjustments to be made but this is a wonderful ship. I forecast that it will double the tourist traffic to Vancouver Island."

VIBRATION

Equally enthusiastic was VMD president Harold Hubbard. "It has come up to our expectations in every way," he said, "and after adjustments it will be a perfect ship."

Main defect to some aboard appeared to be excessive vibration as a nearly empty ship minus the stabilizing effect of a full load of passengers and automobiles, was subjected to stresses and strains which probably will never occur in normal service. (The Sidney was built to carry 500 passengers and 106 cars.)

POWER UNLEASHED

The ship was subjected to 36 consecutive stops and starts and then her potential power was unleashed for the first time as she dashed along the measured mile at 18.2 knots followed by a run astern at 12 knots.

Then came a turn at full power with only 13 seconds elapsing from hard starboard to hard port. This was achieved in a turning radius of barely 300 yards with an angle of heel of only 2½ degrees, demonstrating the vessel's stability.

A PERFECT SHIP

"I think Victoria can be proud of having built this ship," said O. H. Henriksen, senior marine engineer of the provincial government. "Of

Montreal Blaze Kills Five Firemen

MONTREAL (CP)—The bodies of five firemen were recovered yesterday from the burned and water-logged ruins of a business and residential block in north-eastern Montreal.

It was the biggest single disaster to hit the Montreal fire department since 1877 when seven firemen died while fighting a fire in a commercial building.

The victims yesterday were trapped when the second-storey roof on which they were standing suddenly collapsed. Their bodies were found in the basement under 10 feet of rubble. There was eight feet of water in the basement.

Three other firemen on the roof when it fell through suffered minor injuries.

The three-alarm blaze started shortly after 5 a.m. in the two-storey extension behind a three-storey block of stores and apartments. It was brought under control two hours later. Twenty families in the apartments above the stores were safely evacuated.

Doctors Given Pledge

Saskatchewan Prepares Medical Plan

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's CCF government will not try to regiment doctors or interfere with their relations with patients in introducing a prepaid compulsory medical scheme, Health Minister Erb said Wednesday.

The government has no premeditated plan which it will force on the public or the medical profession, he told the legislature.

BEST HELP

Instead, a 10-member committee to study medical care and make recommendations to the government will have at its disposal a paid top-ranking doctor and a team of economists and researchers.

"To judge from some of the intemperate and ill-conceived outbursts . . . it might be assumed we have in mind a plan to place physicians in a sort of concentration camp-regime which would dictate every phase of their lives and relation with patients," Mr. Erb said.

MUTUAL TRUST

Nothing could be further from the truth, he said. The government recognizes doctors and patients must have mutual trust and respect. This relationship will be protected and, if possible, improved.

Mr. Erb said the plan will be based on five principles—prepayment with individual contributions, high quality of service, compulsory coverage, administration by a body responsible to the legislature, and acceptability to the public and the profession.

Only 24 Unhurt Of 109 in Crash

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Workmen yesterday removed from the wreckage the last bodies of 14 persons known to have died in the flaming collision of a Santa Fe passenger train and a big oil tank truck Tuesday.

Seventy-two persons were injured in the smash-up at a grade crossing seven miles northwest of Bakersfield.

Of the 109 aboard the train, bound from the San Francisco Bay area to Chicago, only 24 escaped unscathed. Fifty-one, including 27 of the less-seriously injured, resumed their rail journey eastward after being ferried by bus to Bakersfield.

Behind them lay a nightmare scene of blackened and jumbled cars in the quiet flatlands of the lower San Joaquin Valley.

It took more than 15 hours to clear the roadbed and replace a quarter-mile of ripped-up rails. It was nearly 20 hours before the official toll was established.

A Santa Fe spokesman estimated the property loss at more than $1,000,000.

More TB Families Due

OTTAWA (CP) — Additional European refugee families with one or perhaps more members suffering from tuberculosis will be admitted to Canada during World Refugee Year. Extension of federal sponsorship of tubercular refugees and their families was announced by External Affairs Minister Green.

First Centre Sponsors Refugees

OTTAWA (CP) — A Port Credit, Ont., community has become the first private Canadian sponsor of a European refugee family under the world refugee program, it was announced Wednesday.

Some 450 homeowners in the Orchard Heights area of Port Credit have agreed to sponsor a Yugoslav refugee family of five now living in a camp south of Rome. The homeowners will pay costs of transportation, provide a home, a job for the father, food and clothing and assume responsibility for care and maintenance.

Mr. Green did not specify the number of additional families to be admitted beyond the 100 families already brought to Canada.

He said the number of refugee families in Europe with only one member suffering from TB is small. However, there are families with more than one member suffering from the disease and single persons with TB.

Mr. Green said some provinces are prepared to join in an extension of the program. He did not specify the provinces.

Mr. Green said the 100 families admitted have shown a "remarkable ability to integrate rapidly into Canadian society."

Some TB cases already had been discharged from hospital and most of the remaining cases will be discharged within the next two months.

"It is also evident that all but a handful of the refugee families will become almost entirely self-supporting within two or three months," he said.

EASY LENTEN MEALS WITH CLOVER LEAF SEAFOOD

A LITTLE BIT BETTER SANDWICH

Clover Leaf Tuna all by itself makes a delicious sandwich. Teamed with crisp bacon, tomato, lettuce and mayonnaise, Clover Leaf Tuna makes a clubhouse worthy of a "cordon bleu." Clover Leaf packs only the delicate white meat of albacore, the choicest tuna of all.

TUNA & CHEESE WITH FRENCH FLAIR

Season white sauce with thyme, minced onion, salt and pepper. Cook. Stir in cheese and butter. Don't cook. Pour sauce over Clover Leaf Tuna. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Broil. Clover Leaf packs only the delicate white meat of albacore, the choicest tuna of all.

CALABRIAN PIZZA

The base: bread dough. The sauce: onion, garlic, tomatoes and seasoning simmered until thick. Cover dough with Clover Leaf Tuna and sauce. Bake 15 minutes at 450°. Cover with cheese. Bake 5 minutes. Clover Leaf albacore tuna is the only tuna packed in Canada.

JEWEL OF A SALAD

A handful of seedless green grapes dipped in french dressing. Salad greens, ditto. Clover Leaf Salmon, en suite. Everything sparkles or shimmers. Everything tastes superb. Crown it or not with mayonnaise, but be sure that the salmon is Clover Leaf.

PICKLED SALMON SANDWICH

A delectable sandwich that needs pickled onions—finely chopped—and Clover Leaf Salmon. Spread the salmon on buttered bread. Spread onions on salmon. Sprinkle with vinegar and voila! A sandwich to titillate the palate of the gourmet or to satisfy a hungry man.

SALMON PATTIES

With one small can of Clover Leaf Salmon you can make a feast for four... fish cakes with garlic Mix salmon with two cups potato purée. Season with salt, pepper and a little thyme. Fry till golden in butter. Serve with hot and undiluted mushroom or celery soup. A tour de force!

Propaganda 'Most Dangerous Weapon,' Smile Best Defence—Admiral

Defence chiefs of the Pacific Coast of North America conferred at Esquimalt yesterday on "defence matters of mutual interest" and ended a morning's work looking pleased, but saying little.

"Are you thinking in terms of nuclear or conventional attack?" a reporter asked at a press interview with the three admirals, four generals and one group captain.

"I think that would be classified (secret)," Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Pacific Maritime Commander, replied pleasantly.

And when the Colonist tried another specific question—

whether or not the senior officers were satisfied with the state of defence against submarine-borne missiles on the Pacific Coast—Admiral H. G. Hopwood, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, answered smiling:

"A military man is never satisfied. If he is satisfied, he shouldn't be in the job."

But Admiral Hopwood had more to say about "the most dangerous weapon."

That, he said, was propaganda "and all that goes with it" in the battle between communism and freedom for men's minds. In the Far East alone, there were "about a billion people we can't afford to lose to communism."

The U.S. forces are educating their personnel to carry on this fight, he said—"A smile is the same in any language. And by pushing what we call the president's people-to-people program we find we are able to do a great deal."

All present seemed agreed on the excellence of co-operation between U.S. and Canadian forces.

The conference was the first at Esquimalt since 1953. Taking part were Admiral Hopwood, Vice-Admiral M. E. Curtis, USN, Commander Western Sea Frontier; Lieut. Gen. F. A. Armstrong, USAF, Commander-in-Chief Alaska; Lieut. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, Commander of U.S. Sixth Army; Maj. Gen. D. W. Hutchison, Commander of Ninth U.S. Air Force; Maj. Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, General Officer Commanding Western Command; Admiral Rayner; and Group Capt. W. F. M. Newson, representing the air officer commanding Air Transport Command.

Oak Bay Hopes to Annex Island

Oak Bay is attempting to extend its boundaries eastward to take in Mary Tod Island.

Reeve George Murdoch confirmed yesterday that the municipality has applied to the provincial government for the boundary extension. The proposed new boundary would extend straight south from Cattle Point at Uplands Park to the headland at the end of Satellite Street, just below the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

"We're doing it so that we will be able to control through zoning the use that is made of the basin when the Turkey Head breakwater (which extends almost to Mary Tod Island) is completed," Mr.

Murdoch said. "The municipality already owns the island, and the extension of the boundary would allow us to control use of the basin for the benefit of all concerned," he explained.

Only $800,000 Left For Salary Boosts

Most of the $2,200,000 to be voted for salary increases for civil servants has already been spent, and only about $800,000 will be applicable in the 1960-61 fiscal year, Premier Bennett said this week in reply to questioning from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

The balance was used in the 1959-60 fiscal year for salary increases awarded last year. The $800,000, the premier said, will be used for incremental increases and to carry out all the job classification increases recommended by the Civil Service Commission.

No Result Yet In Probe Of Mill Fire

Investigators combing the ruins of the Crowe, Gonnason lumber mill said yesterday they have several more days of work ahead before they can come up with any firm theory on the cause of Saturday's spectacular blaze at the mill.

David Cumming of the provincial fire marshal's office in Vancouver and T. F. Wiffin of the Fire Underwriters' Bureau also in Vancouver, have spent two days checking the scene of the $200,000 fire and interviewing witnesses.

"It's too early to say anything at all yet," Mr. Wiffin said yesterday. "There's much more work to be done first."

'Teams' Pledged To Build Floats

Municipalities and big business are working with their employees to enter floats in this year's Victoria Day parade.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association, said yesterday this co-operation promises to make the parade on May 23 one of the best in the history of the celebrations.

He praised the employees for taking the initiative in many cases by offering free labor to construct floats.

The navy will enter five floats this year as part of its 50th anniversary celebrations. The floats will tell the story of the RCN's growth from 1911 to today's nuclear-age anti-submarine force.

Plans for the Victoria Day parade are now being drawn. Any group wishing to enter the parade may get an entry form from the office of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association by calling Mrs. Ethel Bishop at EV 2-3912.

Tattoo Goal In May, 1961

Greater Victoria Celebrations Association decided this week to plan with the armed services for a searchlight tattoo to be staged here in connection with the 1961 Victoria Day celebrations. The services have already indicated their willingness.

A second ice surface for Greater Victoria now hinges mainly on financing, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said last night.

He said an undisclosed site has been picked in Esquimalt and council is considering spending between $250,000 and $300,000 for the project if it decides to go ahead.

"I don't think there is any doubt that the site is satisfactory," said Mr. Wurtele. "It will come right down to a question of financing."

"If we can raise the necessary financing I can see no reason for postponing the project. If we can't get the money we may have to wait a few years."

Council members in the meantime are making a full study of arena construction and costs. They have obtained full information from several centres in the province which have completed similar projects.

Reeve Wurtele has been in touch with the navy and will meet army officials in the next few days to discuss service requirements for ice space.

Plans for the proposed arena may include facilities for curling and figure skating as well as hockey if preliminary surveys show there is a need.

Mr. Wurtele said the location of Work Point Barracks and the naval dockyard and HMCS Naden "is one of the reasons why we feel we have the logical place for a second ice surface."

Nurse Critically Injured

Log Rolls on Beach Crushing Sunbather

A registered nurse on the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital is now a patient in the hospital, in critical condition with chest and other injuries received when hit by a beached log.

Mrs. Madeline Mathers, 270 Nicola Place, with her husband William and two children, was enjoying the sun at Gordon Beach west of Sooke, Sunday afternoon.

For some time she had been lying below a log about 10 feet long and 30 inches in diameter, which seemed firmly embedded in the gravel. One of her children had been lying on the log for at least half an hour.

Suddenly, for no apparent reason, the log started to roll. Mrs. Mathers had been lying on a blanket parallel to the log, when it rolled onto her, across, and about one revolution beyond toward the water. While Mr. Mathers assisted his wife, their daughter Patricia ran to other people on the beach. One of these, a resi-

Beer History

Uphill Brews Laughs

Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie who has been 40 years in the legislature, gave members a briefing Wednesday on the origins of beer.

The 85-year-old member, reading from an unidentified pamphlet, said beer was among the foods taken aboard Noah's ark.

GLOWING TERMS

To the glee of members generally, he said ancient Greeks had written of beer in glowing terms and when Columbus discovered America he found the Indians making beer.

The committee chairman interrupted to ask what all that had to do with the attorney-general's salary, which was under House consideration at the time.

IT'S PERTINENT

The Fernie member said it was pertinent.

The House roared with laughter—including Attorney-General Bonner.

Mr. Uphill said in the old days they had a novel way of testing beer. It was poured on a bench and sat on "and if their leather pants stuck and they couldn't get up, the beer was too thick and not quite fit for drinking."

BY THE WAY

And just by the way, he added, they're building a new brewery at Fernie.

Magistrates To Be Paid By Set-Fees

Attorney-General Robert Bonner yesterday introduced a bill in the legislature that would change the way magistrates and justices of the peace are paid on the basis of fines.

The bill calls for magistrates and justices of the peace to be paid set fees for the number of cases they hear, regardless of the pleas that are entered, or whether a conviction is registered.

The new act calls for them to pay all the fines they collect into the provincial treasury.

Under the existing regulations, magistrates receive a fee from convictions only in summary cases.

Vancouver's Sins Alarm Tisdalle

John Tisdalle (SC, Saanich) told the legislature yesterday about the pitfalls of alcoholism. He said "I am not against alcohol, I am against the effects of it."

Alcoholism, he told the House, is an addiction. He said there are 30,000 known alcoholics in the province and they are increasing by 2,000 more each year. "If that is not the business of the legislature, we might as well close at the scene."

Frantic Chase Halts Bus

A frantic half-mile chase along the Island Highway by a Saanich truck driver last night finally halted a flaming Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus whose driver was unaware his vehicle was in trouble.

Within minutes, the coach, carrying 14 passengers and belching flames from its rear engine compartment, would have been in downtown Victoria.

The bus was halted at Tillamook and the Island Highway by Derrick Belcher, 970 Scotia, who trailed the fiery transport for one-half mile before being able to signal its driver, Arthur Manson, 712 Yates.

Manson brought the vehicle to a halt, evacuated his passengers and with passenger Charles Dennett of Abbotsford managed to extinguish the flames with fire extinguishers carried on the vehicle.

Smoke was still pouring from the engine compartment when Saanich fire department crews and equipment arrived at the scene.

Old Island Road Repaving Set by North Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — The municipality will repave and widen parts of the Old Island Highway on some sections between Duncan and Chemainus this year.

Council approved the work, to cost $122,000, after Reeve Donald-Morton said Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi agreed the provincial government will pay half the price.

"He didn't guarantee that the government would pay this highway, just that the government will bear half of the cost," said the reeve.

The work is to be completed this year. The municipality's share is to come from money allotted for it by the $500,000 road building fund approved by the ratepayers in 1958.

Reeve Morton said he and the clerk, Andy Vandecasteyne, met with the minister last week.

The secondary road, now crossed by the Trans-Canada Highway, is called "Somerset Road" at the south end and will bear half of the cost, said Chemainus Highway at the north.

Fire Destroys Home On Genoa Bay Farm

MAPLE BAY — A large farmhouse five miles south of Maple Bay, valued at about $10,000, was destroyed last night in a fire fanned by gusty winds.

Neighbors and volunteers fire department prevented the blaze from spreading to a large barn and four nearby farm buildings housing one of the largest flocks of birds and ducks in the district.

The house, one of the oldest in the district, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lines of Genoa Bay. It was headquarters for Genoa Bay Farm Ltd.

Fire started about 6:30 p.m., possibly from an overheated chimney. Flames had nearly engulfed the wooden structure when the fire department arrived.

Telephone operators phoned fire department and Genoa Bay Road residents who formed bucket brigades to wet large barn and four nearby farm buildings housing one of the largest flocks of birds and ducks in the district.

Annual ratepayers' meeting of the Colwood fire protection district will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the firehall on Sooke Road.

Brrr! How about a good bowl of onion soup to warm up the "cockles of your heart" and get your circulation going in this freezing weather.

India Deserves Help

"Canada's best way of helping India in her struggle to survive as a democracy, is by helping her to establish a food reserve, as India will never be able to do it alone and is too proud to ask for assistance," Mr. Elmore Philpott said in an address to the Women's Canadian Club, yesterday.

During his few months in India Mr. Philpott met both Mr. Nehru and the Dalai Lama of Tibet, now in exile in India.

The Dalai Lama, known as the God King, of his own people, was dressed in western-style clothes and appeared a charming, unassuming person, who was quite ready to talk for as long as Mr. Philpott had time.

Mr. Philpott, felt sure that the Dalai Lama would be able to return to Tibet some day. "Many Dalai Lamas have been chased out of Tibet but they have always gone back," he said.

"India," said Mr. Philpott, "is a land that is both very ancient and very modern." "Life in the villages is still primitive, some of the roads are so muddy it is wise to take off one's shoes to walk."

"Political progress in India, in the last 12 years, has been remarkable. Some of the lively debates at question and answer time in parliament are better than similar debates in the Canadian government," Mr. Philpott thought.

"India has an excellent press, mostly printed in English which is the only common

Victoria Home For Couple

A couple who were married in Ladysmith recently, will make their new home on Dallas Road, Victoria.

At a ceremony in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Roberta Noel Ferguson was joined in marriage to Mr. Joseph Albert Drennan. Right Rev. Father Carl T. Albary officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ferguson, parents of the bride, live at 312 Methuen Street, Ladysmith. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Drennan, 1630 Warren Gardens, Victoria.

The bride chose a gown of hand clipped chantilly lace with tulle inserts, over a tulle underskirt. A basque bodice with a sabrina neckline billowed into a full skirt and rows of lace and tulle ruffles cascading down the back formed a chapel-length train.

Her veil was held by a crown of seed pearls. A pearl droplet necklace with matching earrings was a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, mixed with red rose buds and ivy.

The bride's sister, Miss Nadine Ferguson, was a bridesmaid with Miss Marguerite Feltin.

All the attendants wore dresses of red velvet with cummerbunds, and carried red muffs with trailing white carnations and ivy.

White velvet leaves and feathered carnations formed their head dresses. The flower girl wore a crown of white flowers and tulle.

Brother of the groom, Mr. John Drennan, was best man. Mr. Tom Mavrow and Mr. Orval Deloquent, Jr. acted as ushers.

And where would our smooth boiled or baked custards be without the addition of eggs, or many other delicious desserts, pies and baked goods.

DEVILED EGGS

Hard-cook 6 eggs by placing them in cold or warm water to completely cover them and quickly bring to a good rolling boil. Then remove from the heat and let stand covered 15 minutes.

Cool promptly and thoroughly under cold running water. This makes the shelling easier.

Shell and halve lengthwise. Scoop out yolks, sieve instead of wash and they will be fluffier. Season with salt, pepper, a few drops of tobacco or Worcestershire and onion juice—maybe a bit of dry mustard—seasoning you like best and enough boiled dressing or mayonnaise to hold lightly together.

Refill whites and fleck with paprika or finely minced parsley or chives. For a fancier treatment put two halves together and pipe a fancy border with the yolks down the centre and fleck with minced chives.

From March 26 to April 2 residents of Vancouver and Victoria will have the opportunity to view and buy works of the established artists of three countries.

The occasion is the 12th annual "Do You Own a Contemporary Painting" sale, organized by the WA to the Vancouver Art Gallery. It is the first time the combined efforts of British, Canadian and American artists have been displayed in the Vancouver Gallery.

A large number of Victorians attended the sale last year.

There will be approximately 30 Canadian paintings and 55 signed prints and sketches in the exhibition and sale. The prints, sketches and drawings are not commercial and, therefore, have all the merits of an original work of art and their individuality is readily apparent. They have the further attraction of being inexpensive and would make a notable addition to any collection. Some of the Canadian painters represented will be Alfred Pellen, Leon Bellefleur, Dennis Burton (who won the top award last year), Kazuo Nakamura, Goodridge Roberts, Carl Shafer, Harold Town, Gitta Crisemas.

This year there are 25 representative paintings by outstanding British artists including John Bratby, Ivor Hitchens, Ben Nicholson, L. S. Lowry, Geri Richards, William Gear, John Piper, Bryan Winter, Graham Sutherland, Francis Bacon. They have been personally selected for this exhibition and sale, and will not be shown anywhere else by committee of the Association of International Art Critics headed by Eric Newton, Slade Professor of Art at Oxford and art critic for the Sunday Times.

Also on the committee are Pierre Jeannerat, Secretary of the British section of the Art Critics Association and Bryan Robertson, Director of the Whitechapel Gallery of London, England.

There's an old saying: "The longest way round is the shortest way home."

Educators, it seems, believe this is true in helping your child to read. They are in favor of our using indirect methods, allowing the schools to do the more direct work. Here are some pointers:

● No one can learn without the energy good health provides. Make sure the child is physically in good shape. Teeth and tonsils should be free of infection.

Sight and hearing should be watched, as the occasional child overcomes and hides poor sight or hearing with cleverness. Periodic check-ups are wise.

● Sufficient rest is important. A tired child cannot learn efficiently.

● Mental health is necessary, too. Strain and upset at home are not conducive to learning at school.

● If the child is proud of his reading, brings his little book home, and wants us to listen, give him undivided attention. Your interest helps.

● Make your home friendly to reading. Read yourself; read to the children; read to the family.

Many parents have felt that reading aloud to children discourages them from reading to themselves. We know now that children who are "read to" learn to enjoy books and are more apt to use them.

● Read simple plays together. It can be fun.

● See that there are plenty of interesting books around. They can be the child's own possessions which he will come to love.

They can be library books when the child is ready for greater variety.

● A non-reader can be encouraged by providing something related to his immediate interest.

The slow reader is better with a number of easy books rather than with one which is more advanced. His pleasure and speed are thus developed. He will pick up harder books when he is ready.

Mrs. Jones Re-elected President

Mrs. J. T. Jones was re-elected president of the Lady Laurier Club at the annual meeting held following a luncheon at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel recently.

Other officers are Mrs. G. W. Ellis, 1st vice president; Mrs. Harold Menzie, 2nd vice president; Mrs. A. Ruskowski, secretary; Mrs. C. Walker, treasurer.

Directors named were Mrs. George Gregory, Mrs. H. Lauder Ramsay, Mrs. A. McDonald and Mrs. A. J. Davidson.

Mrs. P. A. Gibbs was appointed honorary president and Mrs. George Gregory and Mrs. F. T. Fairley, honorary vice presidents.

Mrs. H. A. Beckwith, first president of the club, installed the new officers.

THE BROKEN PROMISE ... of Spring

The plum tree is a silly maid. At Spring's first light caress, She heeds his guileful promises. And dons her wedding dress. Yes, she is a silly maid. In not waiting for the bees. And so her blossoms fall. And she does nearly freeze.

Yes... the plum tree is so silly. The romance is rather cool. A storm comes up & blows... Her petals in a pool. They huddle in one corner. Upon a sheet of ice. A stupid maid the plum tree. Never knowing Paradise. Then back he comes & promises. With music of the birds.

But she now is disillusioned. She's heard before those words. Yes... the plum tree is so silly. She wanted so... to cling. But it was just plum crazy. And a broken promise. SPRING.

Garden Notes

Lift the Boardwalk

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

PATH WEEDS—(J.S., Victoria). About the least expensive way of controlling weeds and grass growing up through your boardwalk would be to lift the walk and saturate the soil beneath with a solution of common borax in water, one pound to five gallons, applied with a watering can. This doesn't give a quick knockdown, but renders the soil sterile so nothing will grow in it.

Chickweed in a raspberry patch can be killed by wetting the weed foliage lightly with Crab Grass Killer. A little of this wouldn't hurt the tough last year's canes, but it mustn't be allowed to touch this year's young emerging shoots.

FLOWERING ALMOND—(A.E.P., Victoria). I think the tree you are looking for is probably Prunus Poirardii, which is actually a hybrid between an almond and a Chinese peach. It bears single blossoms in bright pink, deepening in color as the flowers age. Fruits are sometimes formed, but these are bitter and inedible.

HOLLY PESTS—(E.W.L., Duncan). There are quite a number of insect pests that attack our holly trees, but fortunately they can be controlled with a fairly simple spray program. Use DDT 25 per cent liquid concentrate, 2 tablespoonfuls per gallon of water, with a little spreader added, such as CIL Spreader-Sticker or Later's Surfactant, to make the spray stick. Apply the first spray in the last week of April, and repeat about May 15.

SEED SOWING MIXTURE—(E.S., Victoria). When sowing seeds in seed flats, I like to cover the bottom of the box with a half-inch layer of half-rotted leaves from my leaf pile, then mix with a mixture of two parts good garden loam, one part peat moss, and one part coarse sand. Ideally, the loam component should be sterilized before mixing with the peat and sand, and in this case it is wise to add 4½ tablespoonful superphosphate and 2½ tablespoonful powdered chalk to each bushel of the soil mixture to make up for the nutrients lost in the sterilizing.

POTATO TROUBLES—(W.D., Victoria). As I understand your problem, your potato crop for the last two years has yielded tubers with black spots in the flesh, although the skins are quite clean. This is not scab, for this fungus infection invariably marks the skin, and in light of the fact that you bought new seed from a different source in 1959 with the same result, I don't think the trouble can be seed-transmitted.

I would be more inclined to suspect that the soil lacks humus and is probably deficient in potash. This year, give your potato plot its regular dressing of a complete bag fertilizer, 3 lbs. per 100 square feet, then after setting the seed pieces in their furrows, cover each one with a good shovelful of compost or half-rotted leaves and water with a solution of sulphate of potash, 2 tablespoonful per gallon and ½ gallon per running yard of furrow, then fill in with soil in the normal fashion.

'There'll Be No Way of Life'

Television was knee deep in large thoughts last Sunday, many of them disturbing, some of them totally indigestible.

To begin with, two of the towering intellects of our time, Lord Bertrand Russell, who may be my favorite television personality of all time, and Dr. Edward Teller, the formidable physicist, tangled on Small World over a very large issue indeed—whether we should continue testing the hydrogen bomb.

Dr. Teller thinks we should continue testing the bomb and says that if we don't, Russia will be the only military power on earth and there will be only one way of life, the Russian. Lord Russell, who at 87, does not hesitate to say unpopular things (and didn't hesitate to say them when he was much younger, either), declared that if we continue testing the bomb, there will not be one way of life, "there will be no way of life."

Teller disagreed flatly and absolutely that there is any reason to fear that human life will be extinguished on this planet. Unless, he qualified, one government goes "completely mad."

"His premise is that no government will be completely mad. But we have both lived in a time of a completely mad government (the Nazi government). There may at any moment be another completely mad government," said Lord Russell. I greatly admired Lord Russell for stating one undeniable though heretical opinion: "I think we minimize the amount of free speech the Russians enjoy and I think we enormously exaggerate the amount of free speech we have in the West," he said.

He pointed out that he had been jailed by his own government for saying unpopular things and that, conversely, he had been published in Russia. His great thought, though, is that we must stop thinking of the Russians as monsters or they will continue to act as monsters and conversely we must stop thinking of ourselves as the very pinnacle of virtue, which we are not.

Viewing World By John Crosby

My sympathies are with Lord Russell but I must confess Teller is a formidable opponent and he yields not an inch to his great adversary. It was (and is, since it's not over yet) a fine contest.

In the field of large but frequently muddy thoughts was "The Secret of Freedom," which was billed as Archibald MacLeish's first television drama, although drama isn't quite the word for it, on Sunday Showcase on NBC-TV.

This one opened with the defeat of new school taxes in Typicalville, U.S.A. (my phrase, not MacLeish's) whereupon Tony Randall plunged through town asking large questions like "Whither America?" of the garageman and the greengrocer and the librarian and got large chunks of philosophy in answer.

His main point—if I understood MacLeish correctly and it wasn't always easy—was that America is softening, fattening and foundering in a sea of materialism, that we have become a mass market instead of a nation, that we are interested entirely in having instead of being.

They were all good points as was MacLeish's upbeat conclusion—that a "new birth of freedom," Lincoln's phrase, is a constant state of affairs in America. There were many other challenging thoughts, few of which you will ever see stated so positively on television or anywhere else.

The birth of self-criticism is a healthy thing. It's high time we had a few self-doubts and especially time we examined that phrase "richest and most powerful nation on earth" with some skepticism.

However, while the thoughts were interesting, the form of expression I found terribly amateur. There's a great difference between Lord Russell uttering, with overwhelming conviction, his own great ideas — and Tony Randall running around mouthing someone else's.

Rock 'Marc', Liz 'Cleo'?

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

The "Oscar" in the publishing field is the Carey-Thomas Award for creative publishing. This year it was given to Oxford University Press for publishing "James Joyce" by Richard Ellmann.

"James Joyce" is a handsome book of 842 pages, which was over six years in the making. Mr. Ellmann hunted all over Europe for his material and came up with a 300,000 word monument of literary scholarship. He tells just about all there is to know about Joyce's life.

Why was that life worthy of such meticulously detailed biography? Considering the fact that Joyce's fame rests ment, entirely upon two novels very few people have read, this is a puzzling question. But after reading Mr. Ellmann's fascinating book, I think I know the answer. Joyce's life can be understood only if you think of him not as a writer but a prophet. His "Ulysses" and "Finnegan's Wake" are not of such meticulously detailed biography? Considering the fact that Joyce's fame rests ment,

Enigmas, Puzzles

When he was asked about his book, "Ulysses," he said proudly, "Perhaps it is, in a way, one will be able to judge in a century." When asked about "Finnegan's Wake," he said, "I've put in so many enigmas and puzzles that it will keep the professors busy for centuries arguing over what I meant. The demand I make of my reader is that he should devote his whole life to reading my works."

Ended in Tragedy

His life ended in tragedy. In 1932 his daughter Lucia, a person he loved most in the world, went insane; for the rest of his life he was tortured by guilt feelings because he thought her illness was the result of her disorderly upbringing. After reading Ellmann's book I kept thinking of what Joyce HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Rock Hudson is interested in playing Marc Antony to Elizabeth Taylor's Cleopatra. And vice versa.

Both the Wilding boys from Liz's marriage to Mike have lost their tonsils and have been taking it easy at the family apartment in New York's Park Lane Hotel.

Eddie Fisher confided that he and Liz have bought a dream house in Purchase, N.Y., and they'll be moving there soon.

Looks like a third-time marriage for Jack Benny's daughter Joan, who sees only Charles Evans, brother of Bob, during her visits to New York.

Mike Todd Junior expected better notices for his "Scent of Mystery." But those I read were quite good—with the exception of the New York Times.

Arthur Miller credits Marilyn Monroe, and his marriage to her, with "doing my work a lot of good." They are still hoping for a child. Very often the fastest way to have a child of your own is to adopt one. Doctors will confirm this.

Doris Day, who's a bit on the Jean Arthur side, will make "Who Is Sylvia" for Columbia, a remake of "Theodora Goes Wild," which was first produced 20 years ago.

That busy kid Dean Martin, has promised to co-star with Clark Gable in "Bent's Fort" next fall.

Norman Hartnell, dressmaker to the Queen, decided he could not be the subject of the British "This Is Your Life" because of the embarrassment the show might cause his royal patron.

Metro expects its madcap "Ben Hur" to run three years in New York and two in London. A local gag re the long-playing epic, "Why see 'Ben Hur'? In another hour you can be in New York."

Jack Jones, good-looking 22-year-old son of Alan Jones, is also a singer—records for Columbia, and his pals say he is a Sinatra type.

Not many stars have approval of all advertising and photographs. But some of those who do are Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Frank Sinatra, Gina Lollobrigida and the MMMonroe.

Maureen O'Hara will sing nine songs in "Christine" and she believes in the Sammy Fain-Paul Francis Webster musical. "But I'm not taking my daughter Bronwyn out of school in California until I see if we have a hit," she says.

Howard Keel was also smart. He left his family behind when he went east for "Saragosa." There was supposed to be a $1,000,000 advance sale—but the show closed.

Nancy Sinatra To Marry Tommy Sands

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Nancy Sinatra, 19-year-old daughter of crooner Frank Sinatra, announced her engagement to singer Tommy Sands, 22, yesterday, but will be on hand today when teenage idol Elvis Presley returns to the United States to be discharged from the army—as a publicity stunt for her father's TV show, which will co-sar Presley later in the season.

Sinatra said, "Tommy seems to be a nice boy, and it's good to have another singer in the family because I'm getting tired."

St. Patrick's Cards Badly Off-Color

STAMFORD, Conn. — The Ancient Order of Hibernians is becoming distressed about some St. Patrick's Day greeting cards.

Patrick J. Hogan, national vice-president, asked stationery stores and customers to beware of Irish holiday greeting cards that are more "blue" than green. Some, he said, are a "desecration of St. Patrick's Day."

NEW YORK — Actor Sydney Chaplin, 33, son of Charlie Chaplin, will marry French dancer Noelle Adam Sunday.

LONDON — Postman Thomas Fry, 37, got three years in jail in spite of his plea that he donated to charity most of the $2,240 he stole from registered mail.

Congress Slighted

Payola Charges Buried?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House investigators called the boss of the federal communications commission on the carpet yesterday to explain why he downgraded their charges of broadcasting "payola."

FCC chairman John Doerfer was summoned for testimony as the House subcommittee turned its attention to what federal agencies have done to stamp out payola and other radio-TV deception.

Rep. John Moss (D, Calif.) said he intended to question Doerfer about a recent speech in which the FCC head characterized allegations of widespread deception and corruption in broadcasting as "canards and gross exaggerations." The Doerfer speech ignited a hot clash between the FCC chairman and subcommittee chairman Oren Harris (D, Ark.) at a meeting of CBS television network officials here Monday.

Harris accused Doerfer of espousing a policy of "recognition of certain practices that cannot be condoned, but leave them alone and they will come home—in other words, status quo." He likened this to testimony by Boston disc jockey Stan Richards, who said his philosophy was: "I will do for you; what will you do for me?" Doerfer angrily replied that while he agreed with some of the subcommittee's recommendations, he would never favor taking away a broadcasting licence "on rumor." He implied that only a handful of persons had engaged in deceptive practices. Moss said in addition to the "canard" speech he intended to ask Doerfer why the FCC has had to be "almost pushed to the point of exercising more than routine interest" in payola allegations.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Marilyn Monroe's chronic tardiness to virtually all appointments, business or social, draws contrasting reactions from those associated with her.

Recently, Yves Montand and Jack Cole, her leading man and choreographer for "Let's Make Love," were to meet Marilyn for a dance rehearsal at 1:30.

They arrived at the scheduled hour and not surprisingly, there was no Marilyn. They departed at 4:30; Marilyn arrived a few minutes later.

Was Montand angry? Not at all. Philosophically he told me, "That's the way some women are. They can't help it."

But it wasn't that way with Tony Curtis when he was making "Some Like It Hot" with her. Marilyn was hours late most of the time for set calls, appointments, conferences—anything. And Tony grew more furious by the day. He is convinced her tardiness is deliberate and not due to extenuating health circumstances or a nervous condition.

Remember that wacky scene on the boat, with Marilyn and Tony crowded in a steamer chair? When the company ran off rushes of this sequence a day or two after it was shot, Marilyn, Tony, Jack Lemmon, Director Billy Wilder and other key members of the company attended.

Everyone flipped over the spontaneity and incendiary quality of the scene.

"Man, how was it, Tony?" someone chortled enviously from a back row.

Tony stood up. "You want to know how it was? Okay, I'll tell you," he fired back. "It was like kissing Hitler!"

And out he marched amid stunned silence.

Coral Sea To Tie Up All Traffic

VANCOUVER (UPI)—The 63,000-ton carrier Coral Sea will stop all traffic in Vancouver harbor for a two-hour period when she sails in for a weekend visit March 18.

Port manager Capt. B. D. L. Johnson said today that eight patrol boats will stand guard in the harbor to insure the giant carrier's safety during the tricky passage under Lions Gate Bridge. It will take expert seamanship to bring the Coral Sea in.

Johnson said there would be only eight feet clearance from the bottom of her keel to the bed of the narrows and only ten feet from her mast to the Lions Gate span.

The carrier is about the same height as a 20-storey building from her keel to her mast.

ACCRA, Ghana—The baby daughter of Lady Listowel, young Canadian wife of Ghana's governor-general, was "outdoored" Wednesday and named Akua. The baby went through the traditional Ghanaian ceremony for naming children when they are taken out of doors for the first time seven days after birth.

TORONTO—Education Minister J. P. Robarts said British Columbia's system of renting books to secondary school students is "a good idea" and he will study it.

COCHRANE, Ont. — Mrs. Anne Lister was found guilty of manslaughter in the shooting death of her husband in their Schumacher, Ont., home last Sept. 3.

'Imagination' at School Festival

Young Players Squeeze Every Drop of Drama

By BERT BINNY

The Greater Victoria schools' drama festival continued its triumphant way yesterday. Gordon Head Elementary's "Imagination" opened the afternoon program before a full house. It was vigorous and snappy and moved with excellent pace.

YOUNG CAST

The young cast of Kathy Parkhouse, Jennifer Andrew, John Ferreira and Gary Johnston was particularly commendable in its ability to recover the correct atmosphere of the play after periods of anti-climax inherent in the script.

Seven-year-old Patrick McGilligan made a full-size contribution to the success of this performance.

EVERY DROP

"The players," said adjudicator Prof. F. C. Hardwick, "were swift, effective and efficient. They squeezed every drop of drama from the script."

And this they accomplished despite the fact that the script was obviously written for older players.

Excellent pantomime, fine tableaux and movement and good use of color marked Oak-land's presentation of "Noah's Flood," adapted from the Chester Cycle Miracle Play, "The Deluge."

Last year's best elementary actress, Wendy Glover, played the angel with unflinching authority but, said the adjudicator, with some lack of variety.

FINE PACE

George Jay School offered "A Dish for the King," yet another piece which positively bowed along at a fine pace. Jean Forsberg made a lovely Princess and never slipped out of character or out of the play for an instant. Her entourage was, likewise, quite prepossessing.

On Tuesday evening, Prof. Hardwick found the trio of Jim Andrews, Michael Stephen and Martin Petter as "embryonic professionals."

All three were in University School's excerpts from "Henry IV, Part 1," playing "Falstaff," "Prince Henry" and "Poins," respectively.

The adjudicator also re-

Use This Home Recipe Plan to Lose Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky unsightly fat right in your own home. Use this recipe plan yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full twice a day and follow the Naran plan. If your first purchase does not show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly "bloated" disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

'Finch, Carole Guilty But Not of Murder'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The defense for Dr. Bernard Finch ended Wednesday with a dramatic and emotional appeal to the jurors to free him unless they could believe him the stupidest of murderers or a most consummate actor.

Attorney Grant Cooper told the jury the surgeon and Carole Tregoff were guilty of "reprehensible conduct," but not of the murder of Mrs. Barbara Finch.

Cooper turned to Finch just before his final words and said: "If you have lied, you are as vile as they make them and you deserve to be convicted."

Finch stared back without blinking. Minutes later, the two were in each other's arms in an embrace that brought tears to Finch's eyes.

Cooper recalled the state said "one shot in the back" brought Finch and Carole everything they wanted.

"I say to you if she had to be shot, thank God it was in the back because no murderer with the intelligence attributed to Dr. Finch by the prosecution knowing that he had been seen in the garage would ever dream of shooting his wife in the back," Cooper said.

HE CHEATED

Cooper conceded Dr. Finch's conduct had at times been reprehensible.

"There's no question but that Dr. Finch cheated on his wife, violated a couple of the Ten Commandments, committed adultery and lied and deceived his wife.

"No one can condone the reprehensible conduct of my client and his co-defendant. It's an old story. They are not the first and they won't be the last."

But this, he said, does not mean Finch is a murderer.

NO SENSE

"No man with any intelligence at all would go to the pain that the prosecution suggests to kill his wife and cover up his tracks... It just doesn't make sense."

Cooper's stunning finale took the edge off the final plea of prosecutor Fred Whitehell, who called Carole "this latter-day Lady Macbeth who is really the aggressor and instigator of this whole thing."

He termed Finch the "executor of the plan" and said: "You can forgive a man lying to save not only his own life but also that of the woman he loves—but we don't have to believe him."

Deadly 'Something' Gives Miners Cancer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Mine officials and Mayor Theo Etchegary of St. Lawrence, Nfld., a southwest

Burin Peninsula town, are relieved that provincial government officials have shown concern over the high rate of cancer deaths among St. Lawrence fluor spar miners.

An average of three men of the 300-man working force have died of lung cancer each year since 1948.

Mayor Etchegary said yesterday that the townsfolk had been aware that "something" was causing an excessive amount of lung cancer among the miners.

"But we all feel now that we can be relieved by the fact this something which has been damaging lives and causing death apparently has been discovered... and that everything possible is being done to relieve the situation," he said.

Government and St. Lawrence mining and civic officials met Tuesday to discuss the situation. Health Minister Dr. James McGrath said following the meeting that recent investigations had linked the presence of hazardous radiation with the high rate of lung cancer among St. Lawrence miners.

Half of the 300 miners in the community have been in the pits more than 15 years.

Health Minister McGrath announced that recent tests had revealed a high concentration in the mines of radon, an offshoot of uranium, which emits three or four different types of dangerous radiation.

Housing Group Elects Board

Eight new board members were elected to office at a recent meeting of the Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society.

Officers include Capt. H. M. S. Bell, C. Thompson, E. Haw, R. Ellis, Mrs. May Campbell, A. V. Price, J. T. Lambie and Glen Hamilton.

Brahm Weisman, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, explained the work and organization of the board and discussed the slum clearance study.

Speeding Juveniles Lose Their Licences

Two juveniles from Victoria and one from Colwood were discouraged from speeding by Magistrate A. L. Thomas in Colwood police court yesterday.

One city juvenile was fined $25 for exceeding a 50-mile speed limit. His driver's licence was suspended for two years.

The second, also fined $25, for the same offence, was given a one-year suspension. Fined $15 for exceeding a 15-mile limit, the Colwood juvenile had his licence suspended for six months.

Donald H. Stott, 28, of Calgary, was given two-month concurrent jail sentences in city police court yesterday on each of six charges of false pretences by worthless cheques, and one for obtaining lodgings by fraud. Amount involved was $258.

Stott was convicted on one charge, and pleaded guilty to the others.

Two Victoria men, Roy Liversedge and Adam Rutherford, were given suspended sentences on joint charges of theft under the value of $50. Both men were placed under bond of $250 for six months and ordered to place themselves on the interdict list and abstain from alcohol.

In Colwood court four juveniles of that district were fined $25 each when they admitted being minors in possession of liquor.

Also at Colwood, Bert Underwood, Craigflower, was fined $25 for possession of liquor on an Indian reserve.

Negro Students Expelled

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Nine students at the Alabama state college for Negroes were expelled yesterday for taking part in recent protests against lunch counter segregation. Twenty others were placed on probation.

The expulsions — effective Friday — last day of the quarter — were ordered by the state board of education on a motion by Gov. John Patterson, chairman of the 11-man board.

It was the sharpest action to be taken against student demonstrators since the current south-wide wave of protests against segregated eating facilities began over a month ago.

In Nashville, Tenn., 60 more Negro demonstrators were arrested yesterday when they staged a sitdown at the local bus station. They refused to leave despite a telephone call which said a bomb was set in the station. No bomb was found.

Gov. Patterson, in recommending the expulsion of the nine students, referred to them as "ring leaders" and said: "They have no right to jeopardize the city of Montgomery. Any further demonstrations would lead to violence and bloodshed."

"If we ever bow to the threat of a mob, we are on our way out and they'll get more arrogant every day."

He also ordered N. Council Treholm, president of the Negro institution, to place the expulsion notices on the students' permanent records to "protect other schools to which they may apply. These fellows are not going to quit," Patterson said, "and I don't think it's unreasonable to make them behave."

The expulsion order sparked a threat by over 1,000 students at the Alabama institution to resign en masse if the edict is carried out. They also threatened to wage an economic boycott on white merchants in the downtown area.

The Nashville arrests came during a day marked by a massive resumption of sit-downs at public lunch counters.

Police said the Negroes took seats at the bus station here and refused to leave when the lunch counter was closed.

Unflinching Billy Graham Outstares Witch Doctors

KISUMU, Kenya (UPI) — suaded 500 to make "decisions for Christ."

As the crowd began to disperse, three Jaluo witch doctors in grotesque costumes walked up to within 100 feet of Graham's platform and stared at him impassively.

Graham walked up to the three men, who fixed their eyes on him fiercely. Graham didn't flinch.

"God loves you and Christ died on the cross for you," he told them through an interpreter.

The witch doctors didn't flinch, either. After staring at Graham a minute longer, they turned and stalked off.

Antony's Clothes

'One in the Eye'

LONDON (Reuters) — The austere eye of Tailor and Cutter magazine, the arbiter of men's fashions in Britain, has fallen approvingly on Princess Margaret's fiancé.

Antony Armstrong-Jones gives a splendid example of "discreet good dressing in the best Savile Row tradition," editor John Taylor says in an article.

The former society and court photographer's turnout is "one in the eye for the long straggly beards and woolly ties of the Chelsea young Bohemian set," Taylor writes.

Armstrong-Jones' fashion taste, according to the magazine, runs to:

Narrow, thigh-hugging trouser legs without cuffs, giving a long-legged look; comparatively short jackets, slender and almost waistless and having high, short lapels;

Single-breasted jackets, "essential for the shorter man"; High-necked shirts, showing an inch or so of collar above the jacket, and; Individually chosen ties, rather than a club or old-school tie.

Neighbors, Strangers Help Otter Point Fire Victims

Help was rolling in yesterday for victims of an Otter Point fire which destroyed their home Tuesday and sent the father to hospital, suffering from a heart attack.

Robert E. Collins, 44, a farmer, was reported in "fair" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Collins and their three children—Robert, 13; Gary, 10; and Elaine, 7—are staying with a neighbor, Mrs. Jean Robinson.

"The Seventh-Day Adventists telephoned with an offer to organize a drive for household goods and clothing for the family," she said.

"The Red Cross has offered blankets and bedding, and there have been donations from local residents. A cash fund was started with $20 donated by the Shirley Women's Institute."

'Social Workers Complete Strangers to Hard Work'

Social workers are complete strangers to hard labor, Bert Price (S.C. Vancouver-Burrard) charged in the legislature last night, and immediately had members on both sides of the House taking issue with the statement.

He made the remark while discussing the Oakalla prison system and advocating institution of a work system there to keep the men busy.

"Of course," he added, "you would have to send an enterpriser in to set it up. Social workers wouldn't do, because a social worker is a complete stranger to hard labor. That's why they are social workers." Welfare Minister Wesley Black sprang to the defence of his department, assuring Mr. Price that he was "completely in error."

"It may be that some social workers will apply themselves," Mr. Price conceded,

"but they aren't the kind of people who could make a living working for me." (Mr. Price has two shoe repair shops in Vancouver.)

"They may be wonderful people to go around helping others," he concluded, "but when it comes to production they just haven't got it."

This drew immediate censure from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who said that "the civil servants of the province have been done damage in the House tonight."

"I'm not surprised at the statement, in fact, I anticipated it," Gordon Dowling (C.C.F. Burnaby) said. He quoted statements in the civil servants' report calling the work of the social workers "beyond praise."

"We should not unjustly run down employees of the government," he concluded. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, obviously out to put an end to the matter, answered that "I'm sure no such thing was meant by the member." Arthur Turner (C.C.F. Vancouver East) was next to have his shot at Mr. Price.

"Prisoners," he pointed out, "are free enterprisers that got caught." Mr. Price would neither apologize nor comment further.

'Long-Winded'

Senator Russell B. Long, son of famed filibuster Huey P. Long, Wednesday night set a record for the Senate's day-and-night civil rights debate. By 10:47 p.m. EST Long had spoken for 7½ hours against what he called this "bill to crucify the south" — and he was still going strong. (See Page 7)

CALGARY (CP) — A spirited battle appears to be shaping up for the site of the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Sportsmen in Calgary, Vancouver and Montreal — excited by visions of international prestige and tourist millions — want the 1968 Olympics in Canada.

HARD LOOK

So far only those in Calgary have taken a hard look at the immense problems involved. But there has been increasing talk of a Vancouver or Montreal application.

The federal government would be in the middle of any argument; since millions in public money would pour into an Olympic site.

Stakes are far higher than the international glory. The Canadian centre getting the games would have an unrivalled position as the winter sports capital of Canada.

Canada stands an excellent chance of getting the Games. Since the 1964 Winter Olympics will be held in Innsbruck, Austria, the next games should go to a site in the Western Hemisphere. Canada would be the leading contender as the United States got the 1960 games.

VISITED MUNICH

Calgary businessmen, with Ruff, Alta. in mind, went to Munich last spring with an application for the 1968 games. They might have been badly frightened if the International Olympic Committee, had agreed.

Their object was only to acquaint officials with the Banff area, 80 miles west of Calgary as a possible future site. In Ottawa Resources Minister, Alvin Hamilton said he would be glad to hear representations from any interested group that British Columbia's land, border states and lower midwest, catching the brunt of the storms.

Tear Gas Makes Ike Weep

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (CP) — The windup of President Eisenhower's South American tour was marred yesterday by clashes between anti-United States student demonstrators and police who fought them with sabres, tear gas, fire hose and some gunfire.

At one point Eisenhower got a whiff of tear gas that had his eyes smarting.

Secret agents escorting the president trotted along with tears in their eyes also. One demonstrator was hit in the foot by a bullet and others were cut by sabres as police sought to quell the riot. Fire hoses were brought into play.

NATO Task Force To Have A-Arms

Ice, Snow Paralyze Vast Area

CHICAGO (AP) — Crippling ice and mountainous snows stunned a vast expanse of the United States Wednesday, cutting off small towns, closing schools and businesses, halting transportation and causing millions of dollars damage to woodlands.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States yesterday endorsed a plan to set up a highly mobile nuclear-armed task force of allied troops to "further improve" the ability of the Atlantic Alliance to meet military emergencies.

State department spokesman Lincoln White emphasized that all nuclear warheads assigned to the new "fire brigade" would remain under U.S. control as required by the U.S. Atomic Energy Act.

Air Force General Lauris Norstad, commander of Allied forces in Europe, said in Paris the first three battalions in the brigade will be composed of American, British and French troops. Each battalion will retain its national identity but all three would be under a single commander, obviously an American.

(In Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canada does not expect to contribute a brigade.)

For Secret Base Talks

Germany Handed Canadian Rebuke

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has rebuked West Germany for its European NATO partner's secret negotiations to obtain supply depots in Spain.

Croll Charges

'Germany Up To Old Tricks'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Jewish senator declared Wednesday that Germany is "up to its old tricks" and cannot be trusted.

It was "very obvious that here was West Germany going into Spain and here, was Krupp invited to Spain for the purpose of setting up an arms factory, and here was a scheme that was being planned behind the backs of the NATO allies," said Senator David Croll (L. Ontario).

NO WATER PISTOLS

"You cannot trust Germany with a slingshot, a pop-gun or a water pistol," he said. "Some how they will make a war weapon out of it."

"We thought we had disinfected and deodorized her," said Senator Croll, "but we find that as her strength grows, so does her arrogance."

He was discussing the furor that arose in Western capitals last week over news that West Germany had approached Spain seeking to obtain military supply depots on Spanish territory.

RAPS GREEN

Senator Croll strongly criticized External Affairs Minister Green for continuing to accept German and Spanish denials of the reports even after they had been largely confirmed by the Bonn government.

He said it was a "come-down" for Canada that the move should have been disclosed here through newspaper reports rather than through NATO diplomatic channels.

Senator Croll said it was obvious that Germany's real purpose was "to secure facilities to test strategic weapons in secret."

He expressed fear that a rearmend Germany "may well plunge Europe into disaster."

Chessman Death Set For May 2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Convict-author Caryl Chessman's ninth execution date — May 2 — was set Wednesday — over the emotional objections of his lawyers.

They argued that the court could not set a new date as a 60-day reprieve has not expired.

Superior Judge Clement D. Nye held that sentencing was legal as long as the new execution date is after the end of the 60-day period.

In other year, according to present schedule, West Germany would have more troops in NATO than all the other members combined.

HAS MISSILES

It also had 1,000 supersonic bombers, and two different kinds of missiles capable of hitting Russia.

The United States had announced a policy of supplying nuclear warheads to reliable allies. "In the view of the Pentagon," Senator Croll added, "Germany is reliable."

"Germany is not to be trusted, and still to be feared," he said.

Labor MP Says:

They're Building Missiles in Spain

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor MP Robert Edwards said Wednesday he hoped "to produce evidence at the opportune moment" that a West German company is building missiles in Spain.

Edwards was commenting on a statement made in Bonn Wednesday by a spokesman of Wasag Chemie, which he said was the postwar successor to the I. G. Farben cartel. The Wasag spokesman said his company made explosives in Spain but no missiles.

THREE SOURCES

Edwards countered: "My information has led me to believe that Wasag is producing rockets for the West German and Spanish armies. This information has been passed on to me from three reliable sources and I hope to produce evidence at the opportune moment, preferably in Parliament."

STILL EXISTS

Edwards said I. G. Farben had been broken up officially after the war, but the whole cartel network still existed, "particularly that part of it concerned with Spain."

"I intend to expose the industrial Spanish-German axis which I believe is more dangerous than the political axis which followed it. My information is still coming in and it shows that some industrialists have been operating behind

Informants said Wednesday the rebuke was administered in the NATO permanent council in Paris by Canadian representatives as well as spokesmen of several other NATO countries.

SHOULD CONSULT

It is understood that the council will issue a special communique saying, in effect, that West Germany should have consulted all its alliance partners before initiating negotiations with Spain.

The issue may be taken up personally by the foreign ministers themselves at the NATO meeting in Istanbul, Turkey, May 2, which External Affairs Minister Green plans to attend.

AMBASSADORS

So far, only the NATO ambassadors have dealt with the issue on instructions from their governments.

The bilateral German-Spanish negotiations were particularly galling to the Canadian government because when Mr. Green returned from the Paris NATO meeting just before Christmas he reported that consultation among alliance members was improving.

NO INKLING

Franz Josef Strauss, West German defence minister, was here last September but apparently gave the Canadian government no inkling of his plan for "supply depots in Spain."

They're Building Missiles in Spain

the backs of the German people.

The Wasag spokesman said in Bonn that besides its work for the Spanish government, the company had done business with private Spanish firms since 1952—but he refused to give details.

Gunderson Railways Compete

VANCOUVER (CP) — Einar Gunderson said Wednesday two railways with which he is associated will be in competition.

The former Social Credit finance minister is executive vice-president of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway and a director of the railway planned by the Wenner-Gren interests between Prince George and the Yukon.

He told newsmen: "There's going to be competition but there will be plenty of room for all. There is going to be a tremendous development up there in the next few years."

Two Dead, Two Ill

Dog Poisoner
Back on Job

DUNCAN — Two dogs were killed and two are recovering from what appears to be strychnine poisoning in one of the city's residential areas.

Police and SPCA officials have urged dog owners to keep their pets indoors unless they are under control while outside.

"It appears that the same person is at it again, after lying low for a couple of months," SPCA inspector Harold Orrick said yesterday.

Seventeen dogs were poisoned during November and December. Fifteen of them died. Tests on one showed conclusively that strychnine caused the animal's death.

The four dogs consumed the poison about 9 a.m. yesterday, said Mr. Orrick.

"Everything that can be done is being done," he said. "We urge owners to be as careful as they can, and only let their pets out when they are under control."

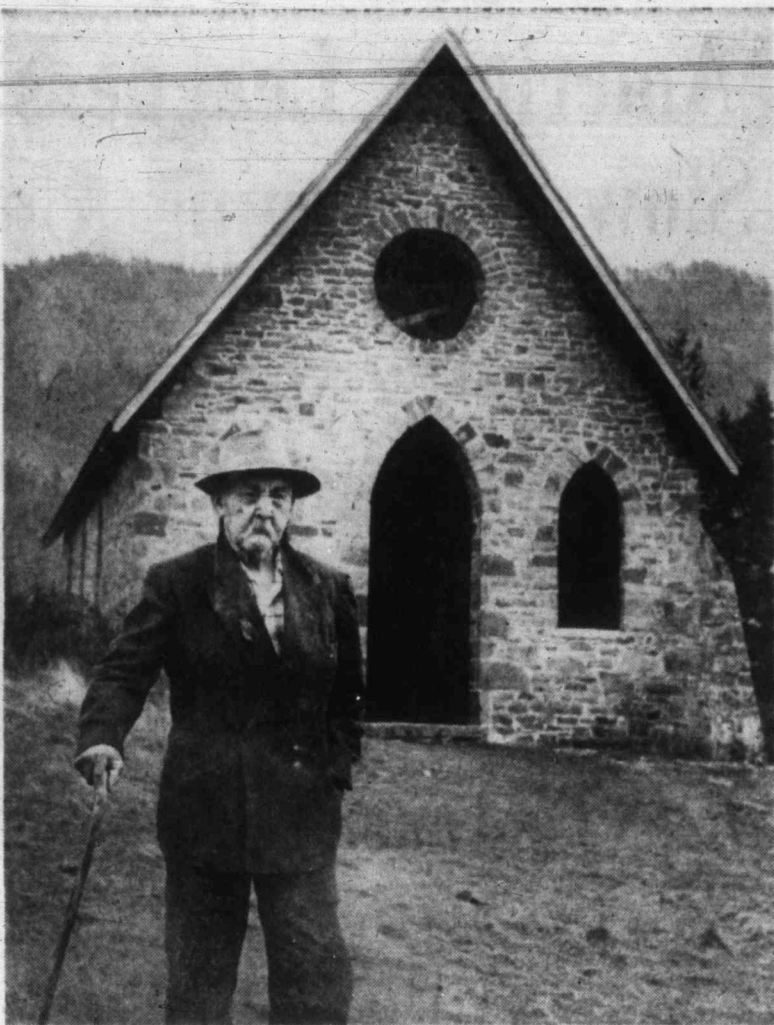

The dead dogs are owned by Mrs. Edward Dillabough, 430 Cairnsmore, and her neighbor, Mrs. Fred Benty, 951 MacDonald. They were found dead near each other in a driveway between the two properties.

Zoning Bid
Is Out

COWICHAN BAY — North Cowichan council has reversed its decision to rezone Green Point—the north side of Cowichan Bay—and will let it remain as undeveloped land.

Reeve Donald Morton said yesterday that although he agreed with the rest of the council, he wanted his vote recorded as being in favor of zoning it as a rural area because the idea had originally come from the council.

Council proposed the rezoning, but it met stiff opposition from 16 residents when it went before the zoning meeting. "I am quite convinced you will some day come back asking that it be zoned rural," Reeve Morton said.

Indian patriarch Canute Lemo, 95, stands before abandoned stone church built on land donated by his grandfather. He claims it now belongs to him. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Bye 'n' Bye but Never Buy

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on the "vanishing pioneers" of the Cowichan Valley.)

By CHARLES THOMPSON

COWICHAN BAY — Cowichan Indian patriarch Canute Lemo flays Indians, whites and the Indian agency without preference.

Non-Indians here are experts at what the 95-year-old sage calls "bye 'n' bye" tactics. Indians have failed to exert themselves and the Indian department is a nebulous quantity.

So thinks Canute, a legend among his people. They say he was present when Father Peter Rondeault and Canute's grandfather, Chief Joe Tsalpaymout, built the Stone Church in 1869, and that Canute was in charge of labor gangs building the E & N Railway through here in 1884.

And they say his father was the first chief of the Comiaken tribe of the Cowichan Indians, and was named "John the Baptist" by Father Rondeault who was the first priest to come to the district, arriving in 1858.

"Well, that's all true," says Canute. And then he adds, "Well, I was also the first Indian in Canada to be educated in a white man's school, Bench School."

He can also claim to have been the first Indian storekeeper in the district. He set up shop in the priest's cabin when Father Rondeault moved to the present site of the Catholic rectory.

Canute lays claim to the stone church, because it was built on land donated by his grandfather and then abandoned by the church. Canute inherited the chief's land.

"Well, Father Rondeault went to Ottawa. He told his church fathers he built a church. Where? they asked. He said on a reserve. They told him to move because he had no right on the reserve."

"Well, he came back and told my father and then he moved. Just up the road, where the church is now. Everything was left in the church for us, and then some one came and took the altar and the bell and the windows. They are at Fulford now, still being used. Everything seems to be stolen from us," he said.

Seventy years ago, non-Indians were better friends with "bye 'n' bye" tactics to get land and meat with promises to pay, but at least they let Indians into their homes, says Canute.

"Few white men in Duncan have ever had an Indian in his house," says Canute. "In the old days we worked for them and them for us, threshing our grain. They showed us how to farm because we were friends."

Of Indians, he said: "When I was young I got a good block and a team of horses and pulled out the stumps. I cleared my land."

"Well, the boys don't do that now. They go to work outside, logging and fishing. They drink too much and waste their money, and don't do what they should do."

Canute says he knows the Indian department is trying to help his people, but criticizes its decision about 50 or 60 years ago to move Comiaken village onto his father's land without even buying it.

"I don't know how the white man came here," he says.

"Well, Mr. Duncan took that land (where the city is now) when the Somenos (tribe) were there. He used his name and pushed the Indians away. The same happened here to our land. The agent (believed to be William Lomas) pushed us away and the Comiaken came in."

"We wonder sometimes who the Indian department is helping," he says, smiling.

His 13 children say he rarely talks, let alone criticizes anyone. He is a quiet man, who likes to work and walk among the trees. His eyes are bad, but he can still see the valley and the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers from the hill he lives on.

And he makes axe handles with fumbling hands, and hopes to live "as long as I can."

Duncan Club's 'Roberta'
Full of Sparkle, Vitality

By BERT BENNY

Months of busy preparation and rehearsal culminate this evening for the Duncan Musical Club with the opening of the high school auditorium of Harbach and Kern's delightful "Roberta."

A preview at the dress rehearsal suggests a show with lots of sparkle and vitality. The spirit of musical comedy which belongs to this form of entertainment and no other is present, if not consistently, certainly in no small measure.

Some notable contributions are made by Jane Russell, Layone Gunn, Cynthia Sherrick, Ed Cuppige, Douglas Lane, Douglas Hudson, Robert Lewis and John Budd, and within the compass of their musical items are lovely to lesser roles. Tosca Oyen and Look At Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, I Won't Dance and Tip Touch of Your Hand.

This show is well staged and costumed, particularly the finale of the first act.

Stage direction and design are by Margaret Hall with music under C. A. Howard.

Production manager is club president Roberta Wagner, and the stage manager is Henry Langlois. Choreography is by Wynne Shaw.

Propaganda 'Most Dangerous Weapon,' Smile Best Defence—Admiral

Defence chiefs of the Pacific Coast of North America conferred at Esquimalt yesterday on "defence matters of mutual interest" and ended a morning's work looking pleased, but saying little.

"Are you thinking in terms of nuclear or conventional attack?" a reporter asked at a press interview with the three admirals, four generals and one group captain.

"I think that would be classified (secret)," Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Pacific Maritime Commander, replied pleasantly.

And when the Colonist tried another specific question—

whether or not the senior officers were satisfied with the state of defence against submarine-borne missiles on the Pacific Coast—Admiral H. G. Hopwood, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, answered smiling:

"A military man is never satisfied. If he is satisfied, he shouldn't be in the job."

But Admiral Hopwood had more to say about "the most dangerous weapon."

That, he said, was propaganda "and all that goes with it" in the battle between communism and freedom for men's minds. In the Far East alone, there were "about a billion people we can't afford to lose to communism."

The U.S. forces are educating their personnel to carry on this fight, he said—"A smile is the same in any language. And by pushing what we call the president's people-to-people program we find we are able to do a great deal."

All present seemed agreed on the excellence of co-operation between U.S. and Canadian forces.

The conference was the first at Esquimalt since 1953. Taking part were Admiral Hopwood, Vice-Admiral M. E. Curtis, USN, Commander Western Sea Frontier; Lieut. Gen. F. A. Armstrong, USAF, Commander-in-Chief Alaska; Lieut. Gen. Robert M. Cannon,

Commander of U.S. Sixth Army; Maj. Gen. D. W. Hutchison, Commander of Ninth U.S. Air Force; Maj. Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, General Officer Commanding Western Command; Admiral Rayner, and Group Capt. W. F. M. Newson, representing the air officer commanding Air Transport Command.

Oak Bay Hopes to Annex Island

Oak Bay is attempting to extend its boundaries eastward to take in Mary Tod Island.

Reeve George Murdoch confirmed yesterday that the municipality has applied to the provincial government for the boundary extension. The proposed new boundary would extend straight south from Cattle Point at Uplands Park to the headland at the end of Satellite Street, just below the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

"We're doing it so that we will be able to control through zoning the use that is made of the basin when the Turkey Head breakwater (which extends almost to Mary Tod Island) is completed," Mr.

Murdoch said. "The municipality already owns the island, and the extension of the boundary would allow us to control use of the basin for the benefit of all concerned," he explained.

Most of the $2,200,000 to be voted for salary increases for civil servants has already been spent, and only about $800,000 will be applicable in the 1960-61 fiscal year, Premier Bennett said this week in reply to questioning from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

The balance was used in the 1959-60 fiscal year for salary increases awarded last year. The $800,000, the premier said, will be used for incremental increases and to carry out all the job classification increases recommended by the Civil Service Commission.

Investigators combing the ruins of the Crowe, Gonnason Lumber mill, said yesterday they have several more days of work ahead before they can come up with any firm theory on the cause of Saturday's spectacular blaze at the mill.

David Cumming of the provincial fire marshal's office in Vancouver and T. F. Wiffin of the Fire Underwriters' Bureau, also in Vancouver, have spent two days checking the scene of the $200,000 fire and interviewing witnesses.

"It's too early to say anything at all yet," Mr. Wiffin said yesterday. "There's much more work to be done first."

'Teams' Pledged To Build Floats

Municipalities and big business are working with their employees to enter floats in this year's Victoria Day parade.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association, said yesterday this co-operation promises to make the parade on May 23 one of the best in the history of the celebrations.

He praised the employees for taking the initiative in many cases by offering free labor to construct floats.

The navy will enter five floats this year as part of its 50th anniversary celebrations. The floats will tell the story of the RCN's growth from 1911 to today's nuclear-age anti-submarine force.

Plans for the Victoria Day spectacle are now being drawn. Any group wishing to enter the parade may get an entry form from the office of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association by calling Mrs. Ethel Bishop at EV 2-3912.

Tattoo Goal In May, 1961

Greater Victoria Celebrations Association decided this week to plan with the armed services for a searchlight tattoo to be staged here in connection with the 1961 Victoria Day celebrations. The services have already indicated their willingness.

A second ice surface for Greater Victoria now hinges mainly on financing, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said last night.

He said an undisclosed site has been picked in Esquimalt and council is considering spending between $250,000 and $300,000 for the project if it decides to go ahead.

"I don't think there is any doubt that the site is satisfactory," said Mr. Wurtele. "It will come right down to a question of financing."

"If we can raise the necessary financing I can see no reason for postponing the project. If we can't get the money we may have to wait a few years."

Council members in the meantime are making a full study of arena construction and costs. They have obtained full information from several centres in the province which have completed similar projects.

Reeve Wurtele has been in touch with the navy and will meet army officials in the next few days to discuss service requirements for ice space.

Plans for the proposed arena may include facilities for curling, and figure skating as well as hockey if preliminary surveys show there is a need.

Mr. Wurtele said the location of Work Point Barracks and the naval dockyard and HMCS Naden "is one of the reasons why we feel we have the logical place for a second ice surface."

He agreed in part with Cyril Shefford (SC, Omineca) that a province-wide plebiscite should be held among Indians on the liquor issue, but said there should be a national policy on the question.

"I think the sooner the matter is faced squarely in the Indian Act the better," he said. "There will be no obstruction as far as this province and the Liquor Control Board is concerned."

Mr. Bonner said that any vote taken in B.C. under the existing act would have to be taken in the individual Indian bands. Big problem would be that liquor vendors would have no means of knowing to which band Indians belonged.

Log Rolls on Beach Crushing Sunbather

A registered nurse on the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital is now a patient in the hospital, in critical condition with chest and other injuries received when hit by a beached log.

Mrs. Madeleine Mathers, 270 Nicola Place, with her husband William and two children, was enjoying the sun at Gordon Beach west of Sooke, Sunday afternoon.

For some time she had been lying below a log about 40 feet long and 30 inches in diameter, which seemed firmly embedded in the gravel. One of her children had been lying on the log for at least half an hour.

Suddenly, for no apparent reason, the log started to roll. Mrs. Mathers had been lying on a blanket, parallel to the log, when it rolled onto her, across, and about one revolution beyond toward the water.

While Mr. Mathers assisted his wife, their daughter Patricia ran to other people on the beach. One of these, a resi-

The committee chairman interrupted to ask what all that had to do with the attorney-general's salary, which was under House consideration at the time.

IT'S PERTINENT

The Fernie member said it was pertinent.

The House roared with laughter—including Attorney-General Bonner.

Mr. Uphill said in the old days they had a novel way of testing beer. It was poured on a bench and sat on "and if their leather pants stuck and they couldn't get up, the beer was too thick and not quite fit for drinking."

BY THE WAY

And just by the way, he added, they're building a new brewery at Fernie.

Magistrates To Be Paid By Set Fees

Attorney-General Robert Bonner yesterday introduced a bill in the legislature that would change the way magistrates and justices of the peace are paid on the basis of fines.

The bill calls for magistrates and justices of the peace to be paid set fees for the number of cases they hear, regardless of the pleas that are entered, or whether a conviction is registered.

The new act calls for them to pay all the fines they collect into the provincial treasury.

Under the existing regulations, magistrates receive a fee from convictions only in summary cases.

Vancouver's Sins Alarm Tisdalle

John Tisdalle (SC, Saanich) told the legislature yesterday about the pitfalls of alcoholism and also warned there was a widespread narcotics market in Vancouver.

He said he had talked to "pushers" there, and the big coast city could also boast of gambling dens and a big red light district.

Attorney-General Bonner said that if Mr. Tisdalle would supply details of the Vancouver situation, he would gladly send them along to the Vancouver police commission.

Mr. Tisdalle, a teetotaler, said "I am not against alcohol. I am against the effects of it."

Six-Man Committee Named To Study Junior Sport Plan

NORTH COWICHAN—Reeve Donald Morton appointed a six-man preliminary committee yesterday to "foster" junior sports here.

Chairman is Coun. Tony Staples, former B.C. tennis champ, who proposed the committee in January when he claimed facilities and sports being played here now are nearly what they were 20 years ago.

The sports committee has been hailed by all sports groups in the municipality. Other members of the committee are Coun. Gerald Smith of Chemainus; William G. Davis, Crofton; David Garbutt, Maple Bay; Earl English, Chemainus, and John H. Smythe, Duncan.

After the appointment, Coun. Staples said since he proposed the committee, "there has been a lack of constructive briefs" and that "most (groups) are just holding out their hands for money."

Reeve Morton said the committee's terms of reference are:

• To inquire into present sports facilities and activities available for youth.

• Make recommendations as to the type of organization (sports council or committee) which should be set up or sponsored by the municipal council to encourage physical recreation.

• Suggest how such organizations could operate to promote interest and participation in sports and physical recreation.

"It is definitely not the purpose of such a committee to merely issue money grants to existing sports groups," he said.

PORT ALBERNI—Rites will be held Friday at 2 p.m. for Mrs. Olive Wilson, 61, a resident of Port Alberni for the past 20 years, who died Tuesday in West Coast General Hospital.

A past matron of Morgan Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and a member of Kiltas Rebekah Lodge, Mrs. Wilson died following a short illness. Honorary pallbearers will be members of the two organizations. Cremation will follow the services conducted by Rev. J. D. Verkerk in Stevens Chapel.

Mrs. Wilson was born in England. She is survived by her husband, Maynard Brown Wilson, 601 Second Avenue S., a son, "Waiie" Tubbs, Alberta, a daughter, Mrs. Bert Burnley, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Burnley.

lated themselves at practice Tuesday on a 30-day period without a single call. Wednesday morning they were called out to three fires within 15 minutes.

The crew turned out to oil sillage tanks on the waterfront at 10:35 a.m. where a short circuit was blamed for a blaze which caused little damage.

One truck and half the crew left the scene when a call was received from 301 Third Avenue N. Some $500 damage was done to a breezeway before the flames could be extinguished. Within minutes firemen were off to the 500 block Sixth Avenue to attend a chimney fire.

Arrangements for a visit to Campbell River on April 10 by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra are now almost complete. The visit, sponsored by the up-island village's Rotary Club, will include a 45-minute student's concert.

Work is to be completed this year. The municipality's share is to come from money allotted for it by the $500,000 road building bylaw approved by the ratepayers in 1958.

Reeve Morton said he and the clerk, Andy Vandecasteyne, met with the minister last week.

The secondary road now crossed by the Trans-Canada Highway, is called Somenos Road at the south end and Chemainus Highway at the north.

MAPLE BAY—A large farmhouse five miles south of Maple Bay, valued at about $10,000, was destroyed last night in a fire fanned by gusty winds.

Neighbors and volunteer fire department prevented the blaze from spreading to a large barn and four nearby farm buildings housing one of the largest dairy herds and dairies in the district.

There were no injuries. The house, one of the oldest in the district, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lines of Genoa Bay. It was headquarters for Genoa Bay Farm Ltd.

Fire started about 6:30 p.m., possibly from an overheated chimney. Flames had nearly engulfed the wooden structure by the time the fire department arrived.

Telephone operators phoned Genoa Bay Road residents who formed bucket brigades to wet down buildings threatened by the flames.

PARKSVILLE—A special committee is studying the possibility of using Parksville's old fire hall as a tourist bureau headquarters following a meeting of representatives of Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce and members of the village council and other businessmen of the area.

Costs of renovating the building and all angles of the proposed project are being studied and a report will be made to the next meeting of the chamber of commerce next Tuesday.

Old Island Road Repaving Set by North Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN—The municipality will repave and widen parts of the Old Island Highway on some sections between Duncan and Chemainus this year.

Council approved the work to cost $122,000, after Reeve Donald Morton said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi agreed the provincial government will pay half the price.

"He didn't guarantee that the government would pay this year, just that the government will bear half of the cost," said the reeve.

Reeve Morton said he and the clerk, Andy Vandecasteyne, met with the minister last week.

Bert Price Charges:

Social workers are complete strangers to hard labor, Bert Price (SC, Vancouver-Burrard) charged in the legislature last night, and immediately had members on both sides of the House taking issue with the statement.

He made the remark while discussing the Oakalla prison system, and advocating institution of a work system there to keep the men busy.

"Of course," he added, "you would have to send an enterpriser in to set it up. Social workers wouldn't do, because a social worker is a complete stranger to hard labor. That's why they are social workers." Welfare Minister Wesley Black sprang to the defence of his department, assuring Mr. Price that he was "completely in error."

"It may be that some social workers will apply themselves," Mr. Price conceded,

"but they aren't the kind of people who could make a living working for me." (Mr. Price has two shoe repair shops in Vancouver).

"They may be wonderful people to go around helping others," he concluded, "but when it comes to production they just haven't got it."

This drew immediate censure from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who said that "the civil servants of the province have been done damage in the House tonight."

"I'm not surprised at the statement, in fact, I anticipated it," Gordon Dowding (CCF, Burnaby) said. He quoted statements in the civil servants' report calling the work of the social workers "beyond praise."

"We should not unjustly run down employees of the government," he concluded. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, obviously out to put an end to the matter, answered that "I'm sure no such thing was meant by the member."

Arthur Turner (CCF, Vancouver East) was next to have his shot at Mr. Price.

"Prisoners," he pointed out, "are free enterprisers that got caught."

Mr. Price would neither apologize nor comment further.

Three Sites Scrap For Winter Games

B.C. Cabinet to Map Fight For '68 Winter Olympics

Provincial cabinet ministers will get down to business today on a campaign to have the 1968 Winter Olympics held at Garibaldi Park in B.C. Sidney Dawes, Canadian representative on the Olympic committee, and David Matthews, president of B.C. Amateur Athletic Association, will arrive by helicopter about 11 a.m. on the legislative buildings grounds and have lunch with the cabinet.

CALGARY (CP)—A spirited battle appears to be shaping up for the site of the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Sportsmen in Calgary, Vancouver and Montreal—excited by visions of international prestige and tourist millions—want the 1968 Olympics in Canada.

So far only those in Calgary have taken a hard look at the immense problems involved. But there has been increasing talk of a Vancouver or Montreal application.

The federal government would be in the middle of any argument, since millions in public money would pour into an Olympic site.

Stakes are far higher than the international glory. The Canadian centre getting the games would have an unrivalled position as the winter sports capital of Canada.

Canada stands an excellent chance of getting the Games. Since the 1964 Winter Olympics will be held in Innsbruck, Austria, the next games should go to a site in the Western Hemisphere. Canada would be the leading contender as the United States got the 1960 games.

Calgary businessmen, with Banff, Alta., in mind went to Munich last spring with an application for the 1964 games. They might have been badly frightened if the International Olympic Committee had agreed.

Their object was only to acquaint officials with the Banff area, 80 miles west of Calgary, as a possible future site.

In Ottawa Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said he would be glad to hear representations from any interested group that British Columbia's Garibaldi Park be made the site of the 1968 Winter Olympic Games.

'Long-Winded'

Senator Russell B. Long, son of famed filibuster Huey P. Long, Wednesday night set a record for the Senate's day-and-night civil rights debate. When he finished at 12.38 a.m. (EST), Long had spoken almost 9½ hours against what he called "this bill to crucify the South." (See Page 7.)

Tear Gas Makes Ike Weep

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (CP)—The windup of President Eisenhower's South American tour was marred yesterday by clashes between anti-United States student demonstrators and police who fought them with sabres, tear gas, fire hose and some gun fire.

At one point Eisenhower got a whiff of tear gas that had his eyes smarting.

Secret agents escorting the president trotted along with tears in their eyes also.

One demonstrator was hit in the foot by a bullet and others were cut by sabres as police sought to quell the riot. Fire hoses were brought into play.

NATO Task Force To Have A-Arms

Ice, Snow Paralyze Vast Area

CHICAGO (AP)—Crippling ice and mountainous snows stunned a vast expanse of the United States Wednesday, cutting off small towns, closing schools and businesses, halting transportation and causing millions of dollars' damage to woodlands.

The violent weather stretched more than 1,000 miles from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast states, with the southland, border states and lower midwest catching the brunt of the storms.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States yesterday endorsed a plan to set up a highly mobile nuclear armed task force of allied troops to "further improve the ability of the Atlantic Alliance to meet military emergencies."

State department spokesman Lincoln White emphasized that all nuclear warheads assigned to the new "fire brigade" would remain under U.S. control as required by the U.S. Atomic Energy Act.

Air Force General Lauris Norstad, commander of Allied forces in Europe, said in Paris the first three battalions in the brigade will be composed of American, British and French troops. Each battalion will retain its national identity but all three would be under a single commander, obviously an American.

(In Ottawa: Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canada does not expect to contribute a brigade.)

Secrecy in Spain Rapped at NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has rebuked West Germany for its European NATO partner's secret negotiations to obtain supply depots in Spain.

Croll Charges:

'Germany Up To Old Tricks'

OTTAWA (CP)—A Jewish senator declared Wednesday that Germany is "up to its old tricks" and cannot be trusted.

It was "very obvious that here was West Germany going into Spain and here was Krupp invited to Spain for the purpose of setting up an arms factory, and here was a scheme that was being planned behind the backs of the NATO allies," said Senator David Croll (L. Ontario).

NO WATER PISTOLS

"You cannot trust Germany with a slingshot, a pop-gun or a water pistol," he said. "Some how they will make a war weapon out of it."

"We thought we had disinfected and deodorized her," said Senator Croll, "but we find that as her strength grows, so does her arrogance."

He was discussing the future that arose in Western capitals last week over news that West Germany had approached Spain seeking to obtain military supply depots on Spanish territory.

RAPS GREEN

Senator Croll strongly criticized External Affairs Minister Green for continuing to accept German and Spanish denials of the reports even after they had been largely confirmed by the Bonn government.

He said it was a "come-down" for Canada that the move should have been disclosed here through newspaper reports rather than through NATO diplomatic channels.

Senator Croll said it was obvious that Germany's real purpose was "to secure facilities to test strategic weapons in secret."

He expressed fear that a rearmend Germany "may well plunge Europe into disaster."

Chessman Death Set For May 2

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Convicted-author Caryl Chessman's ninth execution date, May 2, was set Wednesday—over the emotional objections of his lawyers.

They argued that the court could not set a new date as a 60-day reprieve has not expired.

Superior Judge Clement D. Nye held that sentencing was legal, as long as the new execution date is after the end of the 60-day period.

In another year, according to present schedule, West Germany would have more troops in NATO than all the other members combined.

HAS MISSILES

It also had 1,000 supersonic bombers, and two different kinds of missiles capable of hitting Russia.

The United States had announced a policy of supplying nuclear warheads to reliable allies. "In the view of the Pentagon," Senator Croll added, "Germany is reliable."

"Germany is not to be trusted, and still to be feared," he said.

Labor MP Says:

They're Building Missiles in Spain

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor MP Robert Edwards said Wednesday he hoped "to produce evidence at the opportune moment" that a West German company is building missiles in Spain.

Edwards was commenting on a statement made in Bonn Wednesday by a spokesman of Wasag Chemie, which he said was the postwar successor to the I. G. Farben cartel. The Wasag spokesman said his company made explosives in Spain but no missiles.

THREE SOURCES

Edwards countered: "My information has led me to believe that Wasag is producing rockets for the West German and Spanish armies. This information has been passed on to me from three reliable sources and I hope to produce evidence at the opportune moment, preferably in Parliament."

STILL EXISTS

Edwards said I. G. Farben had been broken up officially after the war, but the whole cartel network still existed, "particularly that part of it concerned with Spain."

"I intend to expose the industrial-Spanish-German axis which I believe is more dangerous than the political axis which followed it. My information is still coming in and it shows that some industrialists have been operating behind

Informants said Wednesday the rebuke was administered in the NATO permanent council in Paris by Canadian representatives as well as spokesmen of several other NATO countries.

SHOULD CONSULT

It is understood that the council will issue a special communique saying, in effect, that West Germany should have consulted all its alliance partners before initiating negotiations with Spain.

The issue may be taken up personally by the foreign ministers themselves at the NATO meeting in Istanbul, Turkey, May 2, which External Affairs Minister Green plans to attend.

AMBASSADORS

So far, only the NATO ambassadors have dealt with the issue on instructions from their governments.

The bilateral German-Spanish negotiations were particularly galling to the Canadian government because when Mr. Green returned from the Paris NATO meeting just before Christmas he reported that consultation among alliance members was improving.

NO INKLING

Franz Josef Strauss, West German defence minister, was here last September but apparently gave the Canadian government no inkling of his plan for supply depots in Spain.

Gunderson Railways Compete

VANCOUVER (CP)—Elmer Gunderson said Wednesday two railways with which he is associated will be in competition.

The former Social Credit finance minister is executive vice-president of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway and a director of the railway planned by the Wenner-Gren interests between Prince George and the Yukon.

He told newsmen:

"There's going to be competition but there will be plenty of room for all. There is going to be a tremendous development up there in the next few years."
